HENRY RICHARDSON A CANDIDATE For the Place to Which Mr. Myrick

Is Aspiring. A FEATURE THAT CAUSES MUCH TALK.

Other Gossip of the National Capital-The Georgia Boys and Their Prospects. News or General Interest.

Washington, April 10.—(Special.)—Mr. Bascom Myrick was at the state department early this morning prepared to disprove the charges that have been made against him to prevent his appointment as consul general to Berlin. Mr. Myrick And an interview with Assistant Secretary Quincey. He was informed that there were no written charges against him but that verbal protests had been made by other apverbal protests had been made by other applicants from Georgia on the grounds that he was not entitled to recognition to their exclusion, he having opposed Clevland's nomination bitterly while they advocated it. Charges had also been made that he had been abusive of Mr. Cleveland personally through the columns of his paper during the campaign praceding the nomination.

Mr. Myrick denied the charges and requested that in view of them the depart-ment would have an examination of the files of his paper made. Mr. Quincey agreed to do this, and immediately delegated one of the most careful clerks in the department to go through the files and pre-pare a brief of all articles that he might find bearing upon the charges that had been made against Mr. Myrick. Mr. Myrick produced his files for the past two years. They are now being examined at the de-

The examination will probably be concluded about Wednesday. Mr. Myrick then called upon Secretary Smith and had an interview with him which, however, resulted in but little. Mr. Myths interview with the manner of the manner of the manner of the manner of the manner. rick simply made the same proposition to Mr. Smith that he had made to the department, feeling confident that he could disabuse his mind. Mr. Smith said he would examine the papers and if he found that he was in error, he would go to the president and withdraw the objection he made to Mr. Myrick's appointment.

A very funny incident in connection with the fight against Mr. Myrick is that since it commenced, Mr. F. H. Richardson, editor of The Atlanta Journal, has changed editor of The Atlanta Journal, has changed his application in the state department from minister to Venezuela to consul general to Berlin, the place Mr. Myrick is applying for. Mr. Richardson's application was filed several days ago by Mr. Harvey Johnson. But Mr. Myrick has the endorsements of all the Georgia delegation for this place while Mr. Richardson's endorsements from the same were for minister to Venezuela. There is a great deal of specula-There is a great deal of speculation here as to what this means and as to how the change was brought about. Mr. Richardson has not been here recently though he is expected tomorrow.

A committee will probably be sent to the president tomorrow to ascertain how much longer he desires the senate to remain in session The senators are very anxious to adjourn this week. It is understood that Mr. Cleveland wants the senate to remain in ession until Mr. Blount returns from Hawaii and makes his report of the condition of affairs there. Whatever is done in the matter must be acted upon by the senate. However, it is not known when Mr. Blount will reach San Francisco and unless something is heard from him this week it is probable that the senate will

President Cleveland has been called upon to decide who is the dean of the diplomatic corps. It seems that Sir Julian Pauncefote notified the state department a month ago that he had been elevated to ambassador, but up to the present time he has not filed the official papers from the English government. A few days ago France elevated M. Patenotre, her minister, to an ambassador and he has filed the official notification with the state department. Though the English ambassador first notified the president the French ambassador first filed his official papers and the question now agitating the diplomatic corps is who is dean? President Cleveland robably be called upon to decide. Sir Julian has been considered dean since his elevation, but now Mr. Patenotre claims that honor. The question is a sweet morsel upon the lips of Washington society. Indeed, it is the main subject of discussion among those society folks who don't want

The postmaster general has informed Colonel Livingston that the rule of the department would prevent the reappoint-ment of a postmaster who held the office under the last democratic administration if there were other applicants in the field. Thus in the appointment of postmasters the "ex" rule will apply.

How the Boys Are Betting. The Georgia boys who are speculating on the entries in the consulship contests by Georgians predict that these names will be emong the winners: John Temple Graves to a good place in Europe; Sam Thanhouser to Paso Del Norte; Bascom Myrick to Berlin; Tom Gibson, of Augusta, to Edinburgh; Harvey Johnson to Antwerp or Rome. Others who stand good chances are B. H. Richardson, of Columbus; Lind-sey Johnson, of Rome; and Jack Cohen,

BACK TO WASHINGTON.

The President and His Party Leave Wilming ton Amid Cheers.

Wilmington, Del., April 10.-President Cleveland and party accompanied by Ambassador Bayard, left "Delamore place" at 7:30 o'clock this morning and rode to the Pennsylvania depot in closed carriages. Growds of people began forming at the depot as early as 7 o'clock. The president, Secretary Gresham and Senator White, after bidding Mr. Bayard a cordial fare-well, hurried into the car as quickly as possible. The crowd then surrounded the car and cheered the president at every op-portunity. The express train rolled into the depot at 8:30 o'clock. Their car was quickly attached and the train drew out on its way to Washington. Previous to the express train's arrival, and while the crew of the shifting engine was preparing to move the special car in position, several young men attempted to climb on the platform on which the president was standing. They endeavored to grasp his hand. Mr. Cleveland noticed the preparations of the train-men and remarked "be careful boys, don't get hurt. This is a bad place for congratu-lations."

The president was standing on the platform when the car was drawn out on the main track. The train pulled out of the depot slowly. The crowds cheered again and again. Mr. Cleveland took off his hat and stood bareheaded until the rear of the train had passed from the shed. Then he turned and went into the car.

Arrival in Washington. President Cleveland, Secretay Gresham and Senator White arrived in Washington this morning. The white house carriage met the party at the station and proceeded steadily up Pennsylvania avenue to the white house, where Mr. Cleveland alighted. Secretary Gresham was driven to the state department and Senator White to his hotel.

PERU WILL COMPLY

With the Demand of the United States for With the Demand of the United States for Reparation.

Washington, April 10.—The Peruvian government has taken the initiatory steps toward complying with the demands of the United States that reparation be made for the outrage committed on one of its consular agencies in Peru. It was not until this morning that the name of the place attacked, which was omitted in the first dispatch from Minister Hicks notifying Secretary Gresham of the affair, was made known to the state department. The information was contained in a cablegram from Minister Hicks, stating that the consular agency attacked is at Mollendo, Peru, and that in answer to the demand for satisfaction made by the administration of the government of Peru immediately removed the subprefect of the department in which Mollendo is situated and promised to provide suitable reparation; and furthermore that the government has expressed its regrets for the occurrence. This information is entirely satisfactory to the United States government.

The name of the consular agent at Mollendo, which is omitted from the dispatches received from Minister Hicks, is William R. Griffith. He was appointed from Pennsylvania, March 30, 1889.

No news has been received by Secretary Gresham concerning the reported outrage against a United States consulate in Bolivia.

CONDITION OF WINTER WHEAT.

CONDITION OF WINTER WHEAT. Report of the Statistician of the Agricultura

Department. Washington, April 10.-The April repor of the statistician of the department of agri-culture makes the average condition of winter wheat on the 1st of April 77.4 against 81.2 last year, and that of rye 85.7. The averages of the principal wheat states are: Ohio, 87; Michigan, 74; Indiana, 82; Illinois, 72; Missouri, 88; Kansas, 62. The average of these six states is 74.2, agains 77 in April 1892. It is 88 in New York, 87 in Pennsylvania, 89 in Maryland and 87

The southern states range from 83 Tennessee to 100 in Texas. The Pacific states show a fovorable condition with the exception of California, where too much rain is reported. Seeding was late in the Ohio and Mississippi valleys, be-cause of widely prevalent drought, causing poor condition of and retarding germination and some cases wholly preventing the same, as in Kansas, where the reports show a total failure. Over considerable areas in the Atlantic, middle southern and Pacific states seeding conditions were favorable. The plant entered winter in the main wheat producing states in a low state of vitality caused by persistent drought and cold weather, with the exception of California, where excessive rains produced a similar effect. Damage from the hessian fly is noted in parts of the states of Ohio, Michigan, Indiana and Illinois. Snow covering has been general throughout the eastern, middle and northwestern states, but not middle and northwestern states, but not-withstanding the reports show much abate-ment from the benefits of protection thus af-forded because of the excessive cold of the winter and high winds, the alternate thawing and freezing in the latter end of the mouth of February and through March. The April bulletin will contain a report of the condition of the live stock at the close of winter and estimated losses.

Two Hundred Candidates for Each Place Two Hundred Candidates for Each Place.

Washington, April 10.—It is said at the state department that the number of applicants for consular positions has decidedly diminished in the last week. The cause is due to the fact that about every man who aspires for an office, has filed his application and the rest have abandoned the hope of carrying off the prize. Of the four hundred consular appointments with salaries attached of over $1,500, there are at least two hundred candidates for each place.

Bissell Knows Nothing About It.
Washington, April 10.—Postmaster General Bissell was shown tonight a dispatch from Philadelphia, stating that Postmaster rield of that city had resigned because the postmaster general had attempted to dictate the appointment of subordinates in the Philadelphia postoffice. Mr. Bissell said that there was not enough truth is the story to justify an interview, and whether or not Mr. Field had resigned he did not know. "I was at work in the department all day," and Mr. Bissell, "and was not notified that any such resignation had been received." Bissell Knows Nothing About It.

And Work Will Go on at the World's Fair Grounds.

THE STRIKE DID NOT LAST LONG. An Agreement Reached Between

Contractors and the Men.

NON-UNION MEN REMAIN AT WORK. It Was a Strike of the Leaders-The Men

Did Not Want to Quit Work-A . Lively Little Riot.

Chicago, April 10.—The great strike at the world's fair is a thing of the past, and the men who walked out this morning will walk back tomorrow morning and nine-ty-nine out of every hundred will work the hours and receive the same pay as he did before he struck. For the first time since its conception organized labor came squarely in contact with the United States government, and while all questions of wages were satisfac-torily settled, the right of the employers to hire non-union or union men was insisted upon by the national representatives and acknowledged by the union men themselves For twelve hours today the result of the painstaking expenditure of more than $120,000 and the good name of the mighty nation were imperiled and endangered, while men who reaped the benefits of the expenditure of that money argued with the men who controlled over a question of 5 cents an hour and the rights of men to think and act as they please. It took cool heads and tem-perate blood to guide the dispute to a peace-ful issue.

It was 10 o'clock tonight when the meeting between the council of administration and the representatives of the building trades council came to an agreement which is to continue throughout the entire period of the exposition, and under which further trouble is impossible.

The men have received the formal concession of a minimum rate of wages and have yielded to the demand of the exposition officials that they may employe any man whether he is a member of any labor organization or not.

The first step looking toward peace was made this afternoon when a committee of the strikers was appointed to submit to the world's fair council the following proposiworld's fair council the following proposi-tion: That if the world's fair council will agree to submit the differences between the men and the exposition to arbitration at 4 o'clock p. m., April 12th, the building and trades council will order the men back to-work at once pending the result of arbitra-tion. The building and trades council binds itself to abide by the decision of the arbitra-tors. One arbitrator is to be selected by the building and trades council, one by the world's fair management and a third by the two-

At 10 o'clock tonight the council of ad-At 10 o'clock tonight the council of administration presented to the executive committee of strikers the following resolutions, which were preceded by a short preamble setting forth the existence of the strike:

Resolved, In the employment of workmen or artisans in the several trades represented by said executive committee for the performance of work under the direct charge and supervision of the world's Columbian exposition, union organized labor shall be entitled to equal consideration with those of non-union and that the workingmen heretofore employed by said exposition company, who have this day gone out on strike, shall not be refused employment hereafter on that account, it being the express purpose of the council that organized labor as such shall not be discriminated against, and Rosolved further. That there shall be paid to every artisan employed by the exposition company at least the minimum wages prescribed for the trade in which he is employed, and

Resolved further. That an authorized rep-prescribed for the trade in which he is employed, and Resolved further, That an authorized representative or delegate of each trade shall be furnished with a pass entitling him to free admission to the grounds, and shall have the right to confer with the workmen of his trade at all times, provided such conference shall not materially interfere with or retard the work.

Resolved further, That the concessions made in and by the foregoing resolutions are so made with the distinct understanding that they shall be accepted by said executive committee as a full settlement and solution of the present controversy; that the men who have gone on a strike shall return to work at once and that the provisions and stipulations of the said resolutions shall be and continue in force and be operative during the whole period of the exposition.

The resolutions were at once signed by all members of the strikers' executive committee, representing 8,000 or 9,000 laboriters.

all members of the strikers' executive committee, representing 8,000 or 9,000 laboring men, and the trouble was over. It was a close call for the exposition, not only for its opening but for its success. The work of the men who struck today is nearly all over and while they could not have ruined the fair, they might, by stopping the work, so delayed matters that the exposition would have been incomplete by the 1st of August.

There was great relief expressed by both sides when the thing was over.

To Unionize the Fair.

The strike today was an attempt to union-sides when the thing was over.

To Unionize the Fair.

The strike today was an attempt to unionize the fair—nothing more. Labor leaders claimed that the world's fair had not kept faith with them because they had refused to consider the making of a new agreement in the face of the fact that the majority of the contractors employed by the exposition had already made arrangements with the men, which was entirely satisfactory to the latter. Nine out of every ten men who struck today were employed by contractors who were on a friendly footing with them. Two years ago when the labor representatives made demands that none but union men should be employed at the fair, they were asked if they could guarantee that the unions could furnish men at all times and work could be prosecuted without delay. After taking account of the stock, they were forced to confess that the unions were not strong enough to furnish all the men the exposition might require. They were then informed by the national committee that they wouldn't discriminate against men become national committee that they wouldn't disnational committee that they wouldn't dis-criminate against men because they were or were not members of the labor union. This ended the argument on the union question and the matter was dropped by the committee on consent. There was an agreement that none but union men should be employed.

agreement that none but union men should be employed.

Two weeks ago the labor unions put in the request that non-union men be discharged. It was refused and from that time began the trouble. It is openly hinted and, on the other hand positively denied, that some members of the bosses' association have winked at the strike because there were men on the ground employed at less than the terms required by the bosses' agreement. The men have an iron-clad agreement with the bosses binding them not to strike, yet they have struck, and none of the bosses seemingly are disturbed over the prospects.

Labor Leaders to Blame. The strike is a strike of labor leaders, and not a strike of the men. The vast majority of the men were unwilling to strike, and only went out when ordered by the delegates, and most of them very unwillingly. There was some trouble in inducing some of the men to quit and the waking delegates were compelled to do active missionary work in ordering them off the grounds. There was trouble, too, during the day and between 8 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock, p. m., four men were arrested for fighting and creating trouble. The first man to be arrested was E. Heinaman, a striking carpenter, who interferred with men who were disposed to work. Osward Weinhuld was also too forcible in his arguments, and was taken into custody. John Matthews and William Hughet were arrested for fighting, and Edward Morris for occasioning a small riot. He was working in the manufacturers' building when ordered by the walking delegate to quit work, and as he packed up his tools said to a man near him, "why don't you quit too?"

"I don't see it that way," was the reply.
"Then you are a scab." shouted Morris, at the same time calling the workman a vile name. The next instant he was that on his back and countless stars were dancing in front of his eyes. He rose and made further remarks and was knocked flat a second time.

A score or more of strikers hastened to A Lively Little Fight.

A score or more of strikers hastened to his assistance and a large number of nonmilon men tame to the defense of his opponent. Clubs and fists flew lively for a few minutes, and matters were ranidly growing serious when a detachment of the Columbian guards and some of the cooler heads among the laboring men succeeded in parting the belligerents. There were several cracked heads, bloody noses and beautiful blue-black eres, but no serious injury was done on either side. The union men were then marched off the ground, leaving the non-union men in full possession.

MORE TROUBLE AT THE MINES.

A General Strike and Another Attack on the Convicts the Programme.

Nashville, April 10.—It is quite generally conceded that there is possibly further trouble in the mining districts in May. It is an open secret that a general strike is in preparation to take effect May 1st, and state and civil military authorities are preparing for another attack on the convicts worked in the mines. Positions have been and are being strengthened, fortifications built and everything is being put in readiness for an attack. The legislature has passed a hill authorizing the governor to use the full force of the state to suppress disorders. It is not believed that the Tennessee miners are back of the movement to any great extent but that the agitators from Kentucky are trying to manipulate the threatened strike so as to cause trouble.

Hod Carriers Strike Indianapolis, Ind., April 10.—The hod carriers and the assistants to the brick-layers—350 men—struck this morning for an advance in wages. DR. BRIGGS'S CASE

Will Come Up Again in May-Election of

New York, April 10.—The semi-annual meeting of the New York presbytery was held today. The principle husiness before the body was the election of seven clerical and seven lay commissioners and their alternates to the general assembly which will meet in Washington next month. The Dr. Briggs's case is to come up before that body. The Rev. William R. Harshaw, pastor of the First Union church, was unanimously elected moderator and the clerks were re-elected. The selection of delegates to the assembly resulted as follows: Drs. Alexander, Tomkins, Brown, Shinning, Booth, Chambers, and Wylle. t iI regarded as a victory for the Briggs men. The first four named are supporters of Dr. Briggs and the other three are anti-Briggs men. In an interview with the prisoner this evening at the Chesterfield courthouse, he admitted having been with the murdered man on the night that the crime was committed and that they were camping together in the woods. He said that he became apprehensive during the night that something

In his conversation with me he spoke of the similarity of this case to one in fillinois recently in which he was wanted for the murder of a man, who, he said, was killed by being knocked off a trestle by a railroad train. He stated that he has bummed about the country for a number of years but that he lived for a while in Chicago. He refused to say what he did there.

The Man Who Claims He Has Clayton' Murderer. Little Rock, Ark., April 10.-Chief of Police McMahon received two letters today one from a citizen of Coahoma, Miss. the other from A. Potter, superintenden of a secret service company of Dallas, Tex., concerning Burkehart's career in those towns. S. A. Carder, of Coahoma, says that Burkehart was a telegraph operator at Lula in 1889; that he robbed an express package containing $40,000 and was driven out of town. He was arrested and sen to Clarksdale. While in search of some one to go his bond, found a hole in the sidewalk through which he fell. He sned the town for $1,000, but the suit was dismissed. Detective Potter writes that he worked up a case against him several years ago at Malvern, where he was charged with "doctoring" tickets for more than the tariff rate, pocketing the balance. Hickey, the alleged murderer of John M. Clayton, will be examined at Morrillton on Wednesday. Burkehart will then tell them who paid the $2,400 for the committal of the murder.

The supreme court today by Justice Field delivered its declaration upon the latest moves in the Chicago lake front cases, which settled them as far as the court is concerned. Justice Field announced that the petition of Corporation Counsel Miller for the issue of mandates to execute the judament of the court expressed some weeks ago will be granted and the mandates issued. This disposes of the second petition by the counsel for the railroad company presented last week for a rehearing of the case by the court.

The address calling for the organization of the Industrial and Wage Workers' Democratic League says:

We condemn the vicious class of legislation attempted and enacted by the legislature at its recent session and endorsed and approved by the governor of this state, the pernicious effects of which will be to put to hazard all industries dependent upon corporative capital, to lessen the volume of currency, to increase the cost of credit and to render uncertain and precarious the occupation of all wage-workers within the state. We denounce the inconsistency of the so-called "reform" party which, proclaiming salaries too large, omits to reduce them. Declaring taxes too high increases them: professing opposition to monopoly conspires to make the state a mouopoly: preaching prolibition legislates the state; itself into a rum-seller.

We declare our principles to be embodied in the simple but sound democratic doctrine of "equal rights to all, special pripileges to none," and our purpose to repeal and to oppose all legislation inconsistent therewith. We acknowledge agriculture to be the master wheel of industrial mechanism, but declare that in the enactment and education of just and wholesome laws it is essential to good order that the equality and quantity of the product depend upon the harmonious working of the whole machine, and that upon no industry more than agricultural will fall the injurious effects of a Geptrure from this just principle. We believe the interest of capital and labor to be the same and we assert that a blow aimed at one will fall upon both, and that legislation directed "against" either will react upon the people of the whole state. The new organization is aimed directly at the reform or Tillmarkie wing of the party. It was brought into existence by the passage of laws at the last session of the general assembly in obediefice to the governor's recommendations calculated to oppress the railroads, banks, factories and in fact, all industries. The membership of the league, it is said, its already v

BY THE UNITED STATES SENATORS.

Some Say They Make Serfs of Workingmen,

WHILE OTHERS SAY THEY ARE JUST,

And in Accordance with the Interstate Commerce Act-Other Matters Before the Senate.

Washington, April 10.—The decisions of Judges Taft and Ricks in Ohio and Speer orgia in relation to the rights and du ties of railroad employes came up in the senate today in connection with a resolution instructing the committee on interstate commerce to inquire into that and other subjects, and quite a long and interesting debate resulted, which had not closed when the senate adjourned. The remarks of Senators Gorman and Voorhees as to the effect of those decisions being to convert railroad amployes into serfs and galley slave, were criticised by Mr. Platt as intemperate and merely tending to execute the passions of laboring men.

criticised by Mr. Platt as intemperate and merely tending to execite the passions of laboring men.

A resolution for a committee to wait on the president and inform him that the senate is ready to adjourn sine die, was offered and agreed to without question; but subsequently a motion to reconsider was made by Mr. Hoar and entered to be called up hereafter. Mr. Hoar's reason for moving to reconsider was understood to be his determination, if possible, to force the senate to take action in the way of investigating Senator Roach, of North Dakota.

Resolutions to investigate Mr. Raoch's case and that of Mr. Power, of Montana, were offered by Senators Hoar and Chandler and went over without action. In pursuance of the same purpose, Mr. Hoar successfully resisted a motion to proceed to executive business.

Mr. Hoar presented the petition of Joseph W. Ady for an investigation of the election of United States senators from the state of Kansas. Referred.

Mr. Hoar also offered a resolution directing the committee on privileges and elections to avamine the allegations recently and the committee on privileges and elec-tions to examine the allegations recently made in the public press charging William N. Roach, a senator of the state of North Dakota, with certain criminal offenses com-mitted while cashier of a bank in the city mitted while cashier of a bank in the city of Washington, and to ascertain the facts and circumstances so as to enable the committee to determine and report what are the duties and powers of the senate in relation thereto. He said that the resolution had been agreed upon in conference with senators on both sides of the chamber. He asked to have the resolution lie over for the present, and was so ordered.

Mr. Chandler offered a resolution directing the committee on privleges and elections the committee on privleges and elections to examine the statement derogatory to the senator from Montana—Mr. Power—contained in The Washington Post of the 29th of March, last, and to ascertain the facts so as to enable the committee to determine and report what are the duties and powers of the senate in relation thereto.

and report what are the duties and powers of the senate in relation thereto.

Mr. Gorman—Let the resolution go over. The resolution went over.

Mr. Butler reported from the committee on interstate commerce a resolution authorizing that committee to inquire whether or not the methods prevailing in the transportation of freight and passengers on the great railway lines of the country and the conditions and necessities of travelers and shippers and transportation companies justify or require a repeal or modification of section five of the interstate commerce act, which prohlbits pooling under any circumstances. Also to inquire whether the system of closing and sealing care engaged in the transportation of merchandise from one state to another, through foreign territory and from such foreign territory into the United States needs to be modified; whether all railroads engaged in such traffic should be either required to conform to all conditions of the interstate commerce act or prohibited from continuing in such traffic should be either required to conform to all conditions of the interstate commerce act or prohibited from continuing in such traffic should be either required to conform to all conditions of the interstate commerce act or prohibited from continuing in such traffic should be either required to conform to all conditions of the interstate commerce act or prohibited from continuing in such traffic should be either required to conform to all conditions of the interstate commerce act or prohibited from continuing in such traffic should be either required to conform to all conditions of the interstate commerce act or prohibited from continuing in such traffic should be either required to conform to all conditions of the interstate commerce act or prohibited from continuing in such traffic should be either required to conform the continuing in such traffic should be either required to conform the continuing the conditions of the conditio quired to conform to all conditions of the interstate commerce act or prohibited from continuing in such transportation; also whether any modifiations should be made in the law concerning the relations between common carriers and their employes.

Mr. Peffer thought that Judge Ricks's recent decision, which had been a good deal criticised by labor organizations, would be approved by them when they came to understand better its scope and view in all its fullness. It was the first great judicial declaration or principle concerning the relations between employers and employes. It was a tween employers and employes. It was a declaration that the railroad employes were as much a common carrier as the railroad president or the railroad company. Judge Ricks's decision, Mr. Peffer believed, would lead to the final adjustment of all difficulties between employers and employes of carrying corporations.

The resolution was referred.

Mr. Harris offered a resolution for the appointment of a committee of two senators to wai t upon the president of the United States and inform him that unless he may have some further communication to make the senate is ready to adjourn without delay.

Mr. Hoa't looked around in the direction of Mr. Sherman with an expression of surprise on his countenance that no objection himself, however, and the resolution was agreed to. Subsequently Mr. Hoar moved to reconsider the vote and that motion was entered.

Mr. Jones offered a resolution instructing to. Subsequently Mr. Hoar moved to reconsider the vote and that motion was entered.

Mr. Jones offered a resolution instructing the committee on Indian affairs to continue the investigation heretofore ordered, with power to visit Indian reservations and the Indian Territory.

Mr. Sherman of Ohio, remarked that the investigations which had been ordered two years ago, should have terminated by this time. It seemed to him that there should be an end to such investigations. Unless there was a public demand for them and unless there was some public usefulness to come out of them, popular opinion would condean them and would say that they were mere pleasure parties, organized at the expense of the government of the United States. He asked that the resolution should go over.

Mr. Sherman's remarks were replied to and the resolution was advayated by Senators Jones, Call, Butler, Higgins, Callom and Hawley, and finally the debate drifted into a discussion of the recent judicial decisions as to the relations between railroad corporations and railroad employes.

Mr. Gorman took the lead in this discussion. He said that one matter to be inquired into was the recent decisions of United States judges, and whether, in view of the interstate commerce law and of the anti-trust law, judges had a right to determine not only what a railroad employe should do, but what he should not do. Those decisions were the first great steps on the part of the judiciary to make serfs of the men who were employed by railroad corporations. The recent judicial decision and one that had to be met at the very threshold of the next congress. It ought to be inquired into carefully by men who had but one motive and that was to see, while protecting the interests of commerce, that no injustice was done to individuals and that the courts of the United States should not be armed with powers as arbitrary as those of the czar of Russia.

Mr. Platt said that he had not seen in the decisions referred to anything that looked like usurgation of power by the courts, or that looked like degrading the workingmen of the country to the condition of selfs. He believed that the employes of railroads had no more right to engage in discriminations of commerce than their amployers had. And he did not believe that there was anything either in the interstate commerce act or in the anti-trust law that was not an affirmation of well considered and well established common law.

not an affirmation of well considered and well established common law.

Mr. Vest said that Judge Speer, in his decision had only affirmed what every lawyer knew to be the common law. He had decided that any contract or regulation in restraint of the commerce of the United States was absolutely void; that any engineer had a right to give up his employment, but that when the association of locomotive engineers or any other association or corporation undertook to make a rule and to enforce it in restraint of commerce that rule was absolutely void. If any judge had declared such a dostrine as the senator from Maryland, Mr. Gorman, spoke of, it would be reversed by the supreme court of the be reversed by the supreme court of the United States without one dissenting opinion against its reversal. Such a doctrine would be mostrous.

United States without one dissenting opinion against its reversal. Such a doctrine would be mostrous.

Mr. Voorhees said that the most dangerous question that the country was facing today was the encroachments of the corporate power of colossal wealth against those who were helplessly in its power, and whom it wanted to have chained to their labor as completely as a galley slave was chained to his our. This power claimed that the railroad employe was enlisted as a private soldier, and if he left his post he was to be punished as a deserter. He had, therefore, felt it his duty to introduce a resolution directing an inquiry as to what action might be necessary for the better protection of the laboring people of the United States in their natural and inalienable rights and for their greater security from the encroachment of corporate power. Nobody pretended, Mr. Voorhees added, that a railroad engineer could leave his engine, endangering a train of cars and endangering the lives of its passengers. But that was not all that was contemplated in the intersate commerce law. That law said in plain terms that he could not, alone, and in an orderly way, sever his connection from a not all that was contemplated in the inter-sate commerce law. That law said in plain terms that he could not, alone, and in an orderly way, sever his connection from a corporation; that he was enlisted to stay, and was to be punished as a deserter if he did not stay, He thought that the com-mittee on interstate commerce could not be better employed than in investigating this dangerous question.

Mr. Platt said it was not wise to at-tack the judiciary of the United States.

Mr. Platt said it was not wise to attack the judiciary of the United States. It was not wise to charge the judiciary with desiring to usurp power. It was not wise to intimate that judges were czars. It was not wise to talk about the disposition of the judiciary to reduce laborers to the condition of serfs; to talk about laborers being chained to their oars. The laboring man had confidence in the courts, and he would be protected in all his legal rights. But he, Mr. Platt, did not believe that the laboring man did not believe that while engaged in the employment of common carriers, he could choose his own time to leave their employment.

After further debate, the question went over till tomorrow when Mr. Palmer will have the floor.

Mr. Blackburn, from the committee on rules

Joseph Chamberlain Makes a Speech in Commons.

HE PREDICTS A BAD TIME OF IT Should the Bill Be Made a Law by Parliament.

IT WOULD WRECK IRISH INDUSTRIES

And Expose the Whole Country to Financial Ruin-And Its Passage Would Not Settle the Controversy.

London, April 10 .- There was but a thin attendance in the house of commons today when the discussion was resumed on the motion for the second reading of the Irish home rule bill. It was not until Joseph Chamberlain arose that the house assumed an aspect of interest and atten-tion. Mr. Chamberlain said that the bill proposed to establish a brand new consti-tution for Ireland. The prime minister asked them, continued Mr. Chamberlain, when the controversy would be settled, if the measure should be rejected. The whole question really was, would the bill settle the controversy? Was not Mr. Gladstone in too great a hurry and wasn't he too impatient to deal with the Irish difficulty? A ew era had opened for Ireland with the disestablishment of the Irish church. Then the agrarian question had been partly settled. Time ought to be given to allow for the beneficial operation for these and other measures; but the prime minister said that Ireland was still discontented and that no progress toward conciliation had been made. If such was the case, then the predictions of the prime minister regarding the meausre he had already promoted for Ireland had proved fallacious and threw discredit on similar predictions in regard discredit on similar predictions in regard to the present measure giving Ireland a separate legislature. Probably, added Mr. Chamberlain, the people of England will accept the bill if they believed that it would enable them to get rid of their Irish question—(hear, hear)—but he feared it would do nothing of the kind. Mr. Gladstone had disregarded the rights of the minority and treated the most influential and prosperous sections of the Irish people with contempt.

He proposed to subject that section of the Irish people to such legislative conditions as would wreck their industries and expose the whole country to financial ruin. Not the whole country to financial ruin. Not Ireland alone, but England equally had reasons to dread the results of the measure.

Justin McCarthy, leader of the anti-Parnellites, ridiculed Mr. Chamberlain's prophecies of disaster.

William Redmond, leader of the Parnellites, said that the bill had been discussed sufficiently by the house.

Sir George Trevlynn, secretary for Scotland, who followed Mr. Redmond, made an elaborate defense of the bill.

After Ashmend Bartlett, conservative, had spoken against the bill, the house adjourned.

THE MASHBURN CASE

Interesting Documents from Cartersville Concerning It.

THE TRIAL COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

And the Report of the Presiding Elder on the Case-Strong Endorsements for Mr. Mashburn.

Cartersville, Ga., April 10.—(Special.)—All Cartersville is interested in the elaborate report of the Mashburn investigation, prepared by the committee which has given the matter its careful consideration for the matter its careful consideration for sometime, and which report completely vindicates Mr. Mashburn from the charges made against him by the Rev. Mr. Dobbs.

At the Methodist church here on Sunday morning, the morning service was occupied in reading the full report of the committee and the announcement of Presiding Elder Gibson, of the Rome district.

The Constitution publishes herewith in full, the report of the presiding elder and

The Constitution publishes herewith in fall, the report of the presiding elder and of the committee of three who were summoned to hear the evidence and determine upon the guilt of the Rev. Mr. Mashburn.

The report of the trial committee goes in to the minutest details and is exceedingly exhaustive, making in all about five columns of The Constitution, which of course makes its full publication a matter of impossibility.

The Trial Committee Record.

The Trial Committees Report.

The report of the committee is about eight thousand words long, and is a comprehensive resume of the whole trial, with an occasional sarcastic comment on testimony or a paragraph of keen satire. It is impossible to publish the whole document, which contains a great many things which have already been brought out in print, but some of the salient points may be noted.

After expressing sincere regret that circumstances have forced them to take any action in the matter, they proceed to take up all the evidence given in the trial and the attending circumstances. The committee was appointed by the presiding elder of the Rome district, to prepare and submit such an expression and resolutions as: they deemed appropriate and just upon the charge that the Rev. Mr. J. H. Mashburn was the author of the anonymous communications. It is shown that the person (Mr. Dobbs being studiously called "person" throughout) who first whispered the charge that Mr. Mashburn was the author of the famous anonymous communications, ciaimed to have received the first one, and that this claim was substantiated by no other cvidence. He claimed that he received it at the postolitee, read it and tore it up as he walked away from the office, and seven months afterwards claimed to repeat it verbatim. On his bed, the night after reading it, he saw with his mind's eye a resemblance between the disquised hand of his anonymous correspondent and the development of the same of the same of the covered from Mr. Mashburn were time before, and which he had filed away and preserved. The second anonymous communication was sent to Mr. Crosby. Dr. Dobbs funted up Mr. Crosby and told him confidentially that they were written by Mr. Mashburn. This was repeated each time a letter was received by any one in the town from this, anonymous correspondent. The third card was addressed to a Mrs. Norris, and the day after it was received. Dr. Dobbs knew it and straightway looked Mr. Norris up and told him confidentially, though he had not seen the card, that Mr. Mashburn was the addressed to a Mrs. Norris had received the card, that Mr. Mashburn was the had not seen the card, that Mr. Mashburn was the author. Then followed a description of the author. Then followed a description of the author of the June of the first and the fall of the seen of the first and the fall of the service of the provided minds, family in confidence that Mr. M

The Investigating Committee's Report.

To Whom It May Concern—The undersigned were summoned by the duly constituted authority of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, to hear evidence and determine upon the guilt or innocence of Rev. J.—H. Mashburne, pastor of said church, at Cartersville, Ga., who was under a rumor of immorality. In obedience to the summons, with no thought or wish other than that the truth should be disclosed and spoken by our verdict, with a jealous care that our church should be purged of a guilty and unworthy pastor, if such he was, and that the truth coming from whatsoever source it might, should prevail, we entered upon the trial with this solemn duty upon us, staking our characters that our verdict should be honestly and prayerfully written.

We entered upon the trial about 11 o'clock ever source it might, should prevail, we entered upon the trial with this solemn duty upon us, staking our characters that our verdict should be honestly and prayerfully written.

We entered upon the trial about 11 o'clock, January 19, 1893, and were about three days in hearing the evidence. We invited witnesses of every denomination to be heard, and heard every witness whose name was suggested by the person bringing the charge and prosecuting the case by himself, his committee and his attorneys. No evidence was excluded by technical rule, nor, indeed, was there any evidence excluded, no matter how offered by the prosecutor—the presiding elder, (with the approval of the committee) going so far as to permit hearsay evidence against the accused in favor of the accuser.

The charge brought was that the Rev. J. H. Mashburne was the author of the following anonymous communications:

First. One addressed to C. E. W. Dobbs. 2d. One addressed to Mrs. J. T. Norris. 4th. One addressed to Mrs. J. T. Norris. 4th. One addressed to Mrs. J. T. Norris. 4th. One addressed to Mrs. J. T. Norris. ath. One addressed to Miss Annie Jones.

The Crosby and Miss Annie Jones communications were tendered in evidence, the other two were not, the statement being that they had been destroyed. The Crosby card contained about thirty words, written in an apparently disguised hand, and was produced by Mr. Mashburne's friends; it, also, was apparently disguised and appeared to be the production of the same author. For purposes of comparison, the prosecutor, C. E. W. Dobbs, introduced a genuine letter of Rev. J. H. Masmburne to Captain D. W. K. Peacock, relating to church work in the mission field: also a letter of recommendation of R. H. Walker, written by Mr. Mashburne: also the date line only of a note which Mr. Dobbs, the prosecutor, claimed to have been written to himself by Mr. Mashburne. There were submitted by Mr. Mashburne also the date line only of a note which Mr. Dobbs, the prosecutor, C. E. W. Dobbs, the sum of $25 for his services.

endeavored to substantiate by seeking to prove certain circumstances by his own evidence.

In no instance, in the committee's judgment, was his evidence corroborated. In a great many instances his statements were disproven by other evidence.

The verdicts was not sought to be influenced save by Mr. Dobbs, who did, while the trial was in progress, approach two members of the committee together, to-wit: J. R. King and C. A. Jamison, and propose to them to consent to a verdict exonerating Mashburne and giving him (Dobbs) credit for sincerity in the matter. This proposition was passed in silence. No arguments were made in the case except by Mr. Dobbs, in the opening and conclusion. The verdict was in these words:

"We, the committee, summoned for, and charged with, the investigation of certain rumors damaging to the moral character of the Rev. John H. Mashburne, a traveling elder of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, in the North Georgia conference, now stationed at Cartersville, to-wit: That he, the said John H. Mashburne, did in the year 1892, write and circulate in the town of Cartersville certain anonymous letters, and did afterwards deny the same, do find, after carefully and prayerfully weighing all the evidence in the said case, that there is no ground whatever for a trial."

There we desired to leave it, but since the honor of the Jury has been assaulted in a public interview, as yet undexied, by the Appreciating the gifts and noble Christian character of Mr. Seney, the faculty and students of the Wesleyan Female college, by sanction of the board of trustees, have pted his birthday, which occurs on the 12th day of May, as a regular college anniversary, to be known in the calendar of Wesleyan as "Benefactor's day," and to be annually observed by suitable literary and musical exercises. On the first day of April, 1881, the wires flashed the glad intelligence that Mr. George I. Se Brooklyn, New York, had given $50,000 to the Wesleyan Female college at Macon. The donation came unsolicited from an entire stranger, and a citizen of a northern state. It was the spontaneous offering of a Christain philanthropist who, in his princely offering to education and humanity literally knew "no north, no south, no east, no west." His patriotic language was: "We are one people. Your people are my people." When asked if he had any my people." When asked in he had any suggestions to make in regard to the building, his answer was: "No, I only want you to construct a building which will make a pleasant and delightful home for the daughters of the south." The college building at the time of Seney's first gift was a large and fine one, but with his money it was remodeled and modernized and made one of the hydrogenest college structures in the the handsomest college structures in the

In Angust, 1881, he added $30,000 to his previous gifts, with the request that $25,000 be set apart for the endowment of a chair in the college to be known as the "Lovick Pierce professorship. "For," said he, "there is no man north or south whose character I admire more, and whose name and virtues I would prefer to perpetuate." How appropriate this tribute to Wesleyan's oldest and most devoted friend? Desiring to honor and beneft southern women, Mr. Seney could not have chosen a more fittig medium than by conferring honor upon the name and memory of woman's warmest and most knightly champion. For such was Louvick Pierce, the early friend and most constant advocate of the higher education of woman. In all, Mr. Beney's gifts to Wesleyan Female college amount to $125,000.

JUDGE HALL HAS RESIGNED

Griffin, Ga., April 10.—(Special.)—Judge John I Hall sent in his resignation as a member of the legislature today to take effect at once. It is supposed that Governor Northen will except it and order an election soon to fill the vacancy. Candidates are already looming up in sufficient numbers to insure a lively scramble for Judge Hall's place. Three announcements have to insure a lively scramble for Judge Hall's place. Three announcements have already been made and the vacancy only occurred today. This promises well for future developments, and Spalding's democracy may find a little spicy break in its usual unanimity. The candidates announced are Captain David G. Bailey and Messrs. J. A. J. ABOUT A BRIDGE.

A Lively Controversy Over One at Rome News Notes and Personals. Rome, Ga., April 10.—(Special.)—The city council has taken a hand in the Oostanaula bridge question and there seems to lively litigation coming on account of that much disputed property.

At the last meeting of the council a resolution was passed instructing City Attorney R. A. Denny to co-operate with the attorneys for R. D. Van Dyke et al, and if possible to have the temporary injunction restraining any and all persons from in any way interfering with the bridge, dissolved. The bridge now stands closed and has been so for nearly a year. It was built by the Rome Land Company, and when it began to be considered unsafe about a year ago, no owner could be found for it. The company had sold it or turned it over to the Rome Street Railway Company, and by that company it was sold to the Lew street car company, who are now asking the courts to grant the injunction. The city had the bridge inspected and when it was reported unsafe, had it promptly closed. The board of county commissioners made an effort to get control of the bridge in order to put it in repair and open it for public travel. This they failed to do and a few days ago a crowd of citizens went there with a force of hands and proceeded to open the bridge and put it in repair anyhow. This brought a protest from Dr. Lawrence president of the Rome Street Railway Company and some hot words were passed between him and the citizens who were directing the work. Messrs. Dean & Smith, attorneys for the Rome Street Railway Company, immediately went before Judge Henry and asked for an injunction to stop the men from opening the bridge. A temporary order was granted and the final hearing will be next Saturday, and the fight will be a very hot one.

and the fight will be a very hot one.

The matter has greatly stirred up the city and it is expected that a vigorous effort will be made to open the bridge. The parties concerned are writing long newspaper cards about their respective sides of the matter. The Tribune Sunday contained a card from Dr. Lawrence and the paper tomorrow will contain a large reply from Mr. R. D. Van Dyke. Mr. Van iyke is a leading merchant of the city and a brother-in-law of Hugh T. Inman.

The Right Hon. Thomas Jefferson Tyon, of Cartersville, is in the city today telling some new stories and shaking the hands of the Rome colonels. He says that he has given up the race for superincendent of Chickamauga park, but desires to be appointed general fish eater at Ha hans.

Hill will be carried to Dade coal mines at once. His case has been in the supreme court for nearly two years. It is a right difficult thing to get a good, first-class, cheap cigar. In fact, they are very rare, yet this cigar has been especially manufactured for Harralson Bros. & Co., and in selling them at a very close margin they are thus enabled to place them prominently before the public. It is always a good idea when you smoke anything to smoke the best. Of course, if you want a 10-cent cigar or one for a quarter all right, but the Figaro is a 5-cent cigar that is almost equal to any 10-cent cigar manufactured. It is for sale by the trade generally. The Traction Company's Grant Has Been

BY MAYOR JOHN B. GOODWIN'S VETO.

He Writes a Long Message to the General Council, Telling Why He Withheld His Signature from the Paper.

Mayor Goodwin yesterday wrote one of the most interesting and important vetoes that has been prepared for the general council in a long time.

And when the local legislature meets next Monday the veto will be read. At the last meeting of the general council the committee on electric and other railroads presented a report recomm that the Atlanta Traction Company be al lowed to cross the Forsyth street bridge upon the payment into the city treasury of $700 a year and the report was adopted

The report was the outcome of a consideration of the question. Long before the time the report was submitted the petition of the Traction Company for per-mission to cross the bridge was sent to the general council and was referred to committee on electric and other rail-Mr. Peters, chairman of that committee, and other members gave the matter a consideration and reported in favor of allowing any of the street car lines in the city to cross the bridge upon the same terms and conditions—the payment of $1,000 a year and the observance of the laws made by the general council relative thereto. Some of the members of the general council thought $1,000 too much money and many smaller sums were suggested as substitutes, but the entire matter was recommitted to the committee and at the last meeting of the general council the committee handed in the report fixing the price at $700, the same to be paid by all roads using the bridge. The same report gave any road in the city the right to use the bridge or rather it barred none. After the report of the committee had been adopted by the general council the paper went to Mayor Goodwin with many others for his approval or veto.

Soon after the paper came into the hands of the mayor he began an investigation of the question and yesterday that investigation resulted in a veto of the ordinance or report which became practically the same as an ordinance after the general council had adopted it.

And the mayor's investigation resulted in

And the mayor's investigation resulted in a veto of the grant. So the entire matter will have to go back to the general coun-will have to go back to the general council again.

Mayor Goodwin's veto is a long one and is full of sound argument. He takes in it three broad grounds for refusing to give his signature to the act. The first teason he assigns for his veto is that the grant made is not one of equity. By the report the price of crossing the bridge is the same to all companies, it matters may whether one operates only a few lines and another operates many lines or whether whether one operates only a few lines and, another operates many lines or whether one has a great mileage and another a short or small mileage. In the next place the mayor thinks the grant even as made is unfair to the city because it is now practically perpetual. He is of the opinion that the city ought to have the right to annul all the contracts by giving the city street car companies a year's notice. This he thinks the city should be allowed as a right, because in the course of time the thinks the city should be allowed as a right, because in the course of time the business of the street car companies over the bridge might interfere materially with any other use of the bridge. Mayor Goodwin thinks, too, that the city ought to retain in the contract with the street car companies, which may go over the bridge, the right to regulate all travel over the bridge and the power to fix and arrange if necessary the schedules.

"In making that veto," said the mayor after the ink had dried upon the paper, "I want to be understood as not opposing any I'm satisfied that when the council and the members of the committee come to look at the matter they will see that the matter has not been given the complete and thorough investigation which the gentlemen composing this body usually give the affairse of the city. Of course, it was simply an oversight on their part and the minute they see the suggestions made I am satisfied the whole matter will be arranged."

MEETING OF THE GOVERNORS

To Try and Turn the Tide of Immigration

Toward the South.

Richmond, Va., April 10.—Gevernor Fshback, of Arkansas, who originated the idea of holding a convention of southern governors to consider plans by which immigrants can be induced to permanently locate in the south arrived in this city today. Governor Fishback urges that the south has been debarred from securing an influx of capital and immigration by reason of the misrepresentations that have been made as to her social and political conditions, but the time is now ripe for neutralizing the influence of such misrepresentations. He suggests, among other things, that each southern governor prepare while here, or after his return home, a paper on his own state, the papers to be distributed by the thousands to the people who will go the world's fair.

Richmond was selected as the place for meeting for the reason that as the capital of the southern confederacy it is more closely identified with the south than any other southern city. As yet, no formal programme has been arranged for the convention, which will not meet until next Wednesday. In addition to the governors, the convention will include in its delegates the commissioners of agriculture, and the president of the agricultural societies of

After adjournment, they will be given a luncheon at the confederate memorial bazaar, which opens tomorrow night. Wednesday afternoon the distinguished guests will be driven around the city sight-seeing, after which they will dine with Governor McKinney at the executive mansion. The Westmoreland Club will entertain the governors in handsome style Thursday evening from 9 to 10 o'clock. Every member has the privilege of taking a lady, and as there are over 300 members, a brilliant gathering will be present, including the beauty, wealth and fashion of the city. Governor Fishback, of Arkansas, is here and Governor McCorkle, of West Virginia; Tillman, of South Carolina: Carr. of North Carolina; and Foster, of Louisiana, are expected in the morning.

Speaking of the convention, Governor Fishback said he would offer a motion in the meeting to the effect that President Cleveland be informed as to the condition of the south and asked to aid in any way he can, the development of this section of the country.

IT WAS A SINGULAR DEATH.

A Night Watchman at the Coffin Factory Dies Simultaneously with the President.

Mr. James Murphy, a night watchman at the Gate City coffin factory, died at his residence on Magnolia street yesterday morning a few minutes after 8 o'clock.

He had just returned from the factory at which place he had been at work all night. He was not complaining and his sudden death was a shock to the family and to the entire neighborhood which was soon apprised of the fatality.

It was a little singular that his death should have occurred almost indentically at the same time as that of Mr. E. E. Rawson, the president of the factory, with whom he had been associated for two years. They both occurred a short while after 8 o'clock.

firm, Stillweil, Millen & Co. of Savannah, was in the city yesterday. He says that the lumber trade with South America is picking up. This is an evidence of better times. Two years ago the Argentine cities could not buy from the Georgia exporters, because it was hard to get the money. But business has improved and Savannah and Brunswick are shipping large quantities of lumber to the cities on the La Platte river. Rio is taking some orders and Spain is buying largely. Georgia is shipping pine to Australia. The gulf ports are sharp competitors of Georgia for the Central and South American trade, while the Georgia coast ports control the northern trade. Stillweil, Millen & Co. recently shipped an order to West Duluth, which was probably the longest all rail shipment of Georgia pine ever made. It is cheaper to ship lumber straight through to Detroit and western cities on the lakes by will then up the coast by through to Detroit and western cities the lakes by rall than up the coast by schooner and through the Erie canal. The Georgia mills are now selling large amounts of pine in Detroit. This trade is chiefly controlled by the lumber companies here in Atlanta. Formerly the Alabama and Miss-issippi mills supplied the car manufacturing companies of Michigan, but now the Geor-

This is a splen-did showing, but Dr. Fox has made so many of them for his sterling company that it is no longer a matter of surprise.

The able and in teresting direct trade article in yesterday's Constitution should have been credited to Colonel I. W. Avery. It was one of the series, the earlier numbers of which appeared in these columns.

This is return day for the May term of the city court. The lawyers who fail to file their suits today will have to wait until the June term. There will no doubt be a rush of cases in the clerk's office, as a large percentage of the sults are now brought in the city court.

Macon, Ga., April 10.—Special.)—The game this afternoon between Macon and Augusta resulted in favor of Augusta by a score of 6 to 0. crowd present to witness the first game of the Southern League season of 1893. In the contest today Macon was clearly outmatched, though she may show up better tomorrow. The first game need not be taken as a criterion and though Macon was badly beaten this afternoon, she will soon show up all right. There is no denying that there are several very poor players in the Macon club. The Augusta tean is composed of much larger men than kacon.

Owing to a sore finger York, the bantam centerfield of Macon, did not play this afternoon and Wedlige was put in his place. Stafford, centerfield of Augusta, was allowed to play, though Mentgomery had telegraphed that she would pretest every game in which he plays on the ground that he had signed with her and accepted money from her. It is claimed that this money has been sent back to Montgomery.

The Augusta club arrived this morning in a special car, accompanied by fifty Augustians. These were present at the game this afternoon and cheered lustily for the Augusta club, and have been painting the town red tonight over Angusia's victory; but, oh, what a difference there may be tomorrow afternoon! While Augusta beat this afternoon it was by no very superior playing on her part. She made quite a number of errors and did no specially fancy work. She made only one earned rui out of the six marked to her credit, and Augusta will find before the season is over that she is Macon's pudding. Macon made tome very good hits, but the most of them went into the far off air and were taken in by the Augusta fellows. The prettlest catch of the game was of Gillen's far hit to the left, which was caught by Everett, of the Augustas. Had it not been for this' running, jumping catch Gillen would have made a home run and brought in McGuirk and Hess. Perhaps the result of the game might have been different but for that phenomenal catch.

This catch was really the only special feature of the game. On the second half of the fourth inning Hess came in from rightfield and relieved Boland as catcher. From

A Great Day at Charleston.

Charleston, S. C., April 10.—(Special.)—The Southern League season opened here today with a great game between Charleston and Chattanooga. It was the first professional league game of ball played here since the earthquake in 1886, when the original Southern League was in existence and on which occasion Charleston kept her team in the field even after the almost entire destruction of the city.

The two teams paraded early in the afternoon in open carriages preceded by a band of music. Over 3,000 people thronged to the ball park, and the game that followed was enthusiastically cheered. It was a veritable renaissance of the baseball craze. Colcolough and Sugden held the points for Charleston and Stephens and Selback for the visitors. Harrington, the league umpire, gave general satisfaction. There was not a kick from either the players or the bleachers during the game and the good plays of both sides were impartially applauded. Charleston won the game in the first inning, piling up five runs mainly due to the tactics of Stephens, who, with two men on bases, pitched the ball to the catcher with the object of preventing McCarthy, Charleston's star batter, from hitting it. Following is the summary by innings. Charleston . . . 5 0 0 3 0 0 1 0 0-9 Chattanooga . . . 0 0 0 0 1 2 0 0-3 Earned runs, Charleston 3; chrors, Charleston 2; total bases on hits, Charleston 10; Chattanooga 3; first base on balls, off Stephens 4, off Colcolough 3; left on bases, Charleston 4, Chattanooga; struck out, by Stephens 3, by volcolough 5: double plays, Hatfield and Flaherty, of Charleston; Menafee, of Chattanooga. THE CHICAGO-CLEVELAND GAME.

The Youngsters Anson Is Training Succeeded in Knocking Tebeau's Men Out.

The Chicagos defeated the Cleveland team yesterday afternoon in one of the team yesternay afternoon in one of the prettiest and most even games ever played in the south.

A good crowd was out to see the game, and it was one very much enjoyed indeed by all who were present. Anson presented accill as his pitcher, with Kittridge as his catcher and the usual team as his support. Tebeau had Cy Young, the man who could not be touched when the team was in Atlanta before, in the box, but Young had either lost his speed or forgotten his cunning, and was an easy mark for the Chicago batters.

Both teams, however, played a fine game, only one error being charged up to either side.

Anson's men started the work in the first inning when Parrott kocked a ball over the fence for a home run. The Clevelands, when they came to bat, could do nothing with young McGill. He was quick, and easy in his work, and sent the heavy hitters to the bench one after another. It was not until the third inning that a hit was secured by the Clevelands and that hit was a scratch, and was productive of nothing. In the sixth, however, a single by O'Connor and a triple by Young gave a run and in the seventh, singles by Ewing and Virtue, and a double by O'Connor gave up another, and the last run. Twice Cleveland had the bases full with no one out, and the prospects for the Spiders were good, but each time McGill settled down to work and retired the side by good, heady pitching. Anson's men started the work in the first

Montgomery, Mobile, Macon and New Orleans and have been watching the men against whom we have been playing. It's now my opinion that New Orleans has a mighty strong team and that she is going to keep all the people guessag. Charleston has a good team and so has Macon. The Savannah team is a mighty industrious lot of fellows and will keep the whole league guessing. But from what I have seen and heard, I am willing to say that I think Atlanta has the strongest team in the league by long odds notwithstanding the defeat this afternoon."

by long odds notwithstanding the this afternoon."

On the Pittsburg team this afternoon will be found at third base Denny Lyons, who once played in Atlanta. Van Haltren is there, too, while many of the best men of the National League can be found on the list.

Game will be called at 3:30 o'clock today instead of 3 as heretofore.

Diamond Dust.

Byan, Chicago's great outfielder, reached the city yesterday morning and was on the grounds at work. He saw the game from the grand stand yesterday afternoon, but will take part this afternoon.

Lally's arm is yet quite sore, but he will grow better before the game this afternoon.

McGill is certainly one of the most promfaing young men in the game.

The game will be taken in detail again this afternoon at No. 5 Decatur street, and Manager Bassett hopes to have a more cheerful story to tell next time.

Four of the home teams won yesterday and four of the visiting teams lost.

. TWO FIRMS BID,

But Only One Bid Was Considered by the Police Board.

Last night's meeting of the board of police commissioners was a brief but husy one. Chairman English had to get off to one. Chairman English had to get off to New Work and business was rushed through.

The most important business transacted was the letting of the contract for the spring uniforms for the policemen. Important as this was it did not occupy longer tant as this was it did not occupy longer than five minutes. It had been settled before, as was stated in yesterday's paper. Chairman English, who had been looking after the matter of letting the contract, re-ported that only two bids had been re-ceived. ceived

And only one of these was in sight, that of Hirsch Bros. The bid of the Ames Company, of Kalamazoo, Mich., although four dollars less than the first named bid, never saw the commissioner's room. Chairman English reported that he had looked into the matter and thought it advisable to recommend the acceptance of the Hirsch bid.

"I am in favor of patronizing a home institution," said he. "You are in closer touch with them than with a foreign house, and if anything should happen to be wrong you can have it righted without much trouble. Once before we let the contract for uniforms to a Cincinnati firm and the experience was not pleasing, nor calculated to arouse a spirit of emulation. ceived very poor satisfaction and finally nad to take the clothes on the condition nad to take the clothes on the condition that they would deduct three dollars from the price of each suit of clothes. The bid of the other company is four dollars less than that of Hirsch Bros."

Hirsch Bros.'s bid was full uniforms, $18.75. Patrolmen who need part of a uniform can get it at the following prices: Coat, $10; vest, $2.75; pants, $6.75. The bid of the Ames Company was not considered at all. It was put in by Mr. Abell, a very excellent gentleman, a member of the governor's staff of his state, and a fine business man. His firm is celebrated as makers of military and police uniforms. He guaranteed to make the uniforms in conformity with the advertised requirements, his bid being $14.75 per uniform. It was moved, after Chairman English had made his talk, that the bid made by Hirsch Bros. be accepted. This was passed unanimously.

Last year the spring uniforms cost the policemen $17.25. They were paid for by the city then. The council voted the pattern of the property of the cost of their uniforms. This increase will fall somewhat short of paying for the uniforms for the year. The total amount of the increase for the year will be $54.75, while the aggregate cost of uniforms, spring and summer and helmets, will be $57.75.

A petition from Patrolman Ozburn, who was dropped from the force at the recent him on the force, was presented. The petition was signed by two or three captains and several sergeants. It was not considered at all, but seemed to stir up the commissioners somewhat.

"I don't understand why the officers. I presumed that if was right, but here they come telling us that the board reinstated why the officers. I presumed that if was right, but here they come telling us that Mr. Ozburn should be reinstated. What are we to believe about the case? I have done nothing that I wish to take back."

-----ATLANTA, GA., April 11, 1893.

The Decline in Prices.

Mr. Trenholm in his book on "Th People's Money," which is admirably written and carefully thought out from the goldbug point of view, strives hard to create the impression that gold has been made the standard of our mone tary system because its value is fixed and stable. And yet no commodity has been subjected to more violent or frequent fluctuations.

If, since it has been made the sole standard of our system, it had displayed the quality of stability, there would not now be an effort on the part of the people to restore silver to its old place in our currency. But the "honest dollar" has in reality become a dishonest dollar. It is constantly increasing in value, constantly growing dearer. The goldolators are in the habit of de nying this plain fact most strenuously and it is significant of the essentia weakness of their position that they deal with this elemental and most im portant feature of gold monometallism by merely denying its existence.

Nevertheless, it is a fact that has made an impression deep enough in England to bring into existence a party of bimetallism-a party that has at the head of it some of the most distin guished statesmen of Great Britain and some of the most successful business men. And it is a fact that makes a deep and lasting impression on the minds of American farmers every time they offer their produce in the market for the purpose of buying gold with which to pay their debts. They may not know that the trouble at the bot tom of the matter is the appreciation of gold, but they know that money has become dearer because they cannot get as much of it for their products a formerly. Ten years ago, a bale of cotton was good for $50. Now a bale of cotton will fetch something over $30. So with all the great staple commodities. It is truer to say that these commodities are the measure of the value of gold than to say that gold is the measure of their value. They register its constant advance with as much certainty as a sun dial registers the shadow cast by the sun. Those who say that the price of everything has declined, while gold has remained fixed and stable, are to be compared with those who would say that the march of the shadow on the dial is due to the movement of the sun.

The Boston Herald, replying to a correspondent, undertakes to say that the fall in the price of silver has no relation to the fall in the price of all the staple products of human industry, and the proof it offers is a statement to the effect that the decline in silver has been greater in twenty years than the decline in the price of other commodities. In point of fact, the proof shows that gold has increased in value steadily as compared with silver, while other commodities have been affected to some extent by the greater or less supply. The fact that we insist on as showing that gold has constantly increased in value is that the decline in prices has been practically universal, and the decline is going on constantly. It is the one feature that attracts attention in all countries where gold is employed as the standard of value.

How can it be known that this de cline is not really a decline, but a sign of the increase in the value of gold? By the simplest and most satisfactory method known to the human mind-the method of comparison. When we compare the products of human industry with each other, we perceive at once that there has been no change with respect to their relations with each other. A bushel of wheat will buy just as much cotton as it would twenty years ago. In other words the products of human industry are interchangeable with each other in barter on pretty near the same basis that existed when silver bullion was money. An ounce of silver will buy very nearly the same amount of wheat and cotton that it would buy before it was demonetized

It is only in relation to gold that these products are seen to have lost value, and the inevitable conclusion must be that the change that has taken place in their relation to gold is due to the fact that gold has enormously in-reased in value since it has become the sole monetary standard of so many plete verification in the fact that es have not declined in India and exico and other countries that have the silver standard. In India today 64 cents' worth of bullion silver will buy a dollar's worth of cotton or wheat, and the producer loses nothing, for his silver is worth a dollar in gold in the market where he has to pay his debts or purchase his supplies. This Indian situation has a direct bearing on the condition of our own farmers. They are compelled to pay their debts in gold, but their cotton and their wheat are sold at prices fixed by the silver standard.

When a farmer takes his products to market for the purpose of buying gold to pay taxes or settle his debts, he discovers at once that the result of his abor will not go as far as it used to. He cannot make his cotton or his wheat more cheaply, but he finds that he has to bring a great deal more of it to get dollar in gold. This is due to the fact that gold has largely increased in value. The trouble is, it continues to increase in value, and the producers do not know where the process is to

The question suggests itself-which is the more dishonest dollar, the dollar that by constantly increasing in value. robs the debtor or the producer, or the cheaper dollar that prevents creditors and money lenders from realizing more than a fair share of profit?

The Watson Interview.

The publication in these columns of an interview with ex-Congressman Tom Watson causes The Madisonian to ask the following question:

stitution why it furnished Tommie Tittie-mouse so much help in his effort to catch fishes out of democratic dishes?

Several of our state contemporaries have indulged in similar comments which leads us to say that we have never yet found it an advantage to remain in ignorance of the views and the movements of our opponents, whether republicans or third party men. We have never found that it made democratic organization more compact and more efficient to hide from the rank and file the very facts that would place them on their guard and enable them to combat future dangers. We have never found it good policy for a democratic newspaper to suppress the news and when we reach that point we shall abandon the newspaper business.

The publication of the Watson interview has done more to solidify the democratic party, and strengthen its financial and tariff reform programme than anything that has appeared in print in the past six months. Thought ful democrats all over the union have read the Watson interview, and studied it between the lines. They have seen under the surface the third party leader's plans and purposes clearly outlined, and they have realized the fact that the best way to disarm and nullify the work of the populists is to carry into practical execution every reform promised in our platform. democratic leaders all on this line, backed by the whole party, and with the administration duly forewarned in regard to the policy of the opposition, the outlook grows brighter.

Whenever The Constitution can ob tain any news from the enemy's headthat should be utilized in the nterests of the democratic party, it proposes to get the facts and publish them. In other words it will be true to its mission as a democratic news paper.

Democratic Tariff Reform.

Editor Watterson, who was one of the authors of the tariff plank in the ocratic platform, is not inclined to listen to any more compromises in regard to the reform of the tariff, and he is right. The question of protection has been disposed of. "We declare it to be a fundamental principle of the democratic party," says the democratic platform, "that the federal government has no constitutional power to impose and collect tariff duties, except for the purpose of revenue only, and we demand that the collection of such taxes shall be limited to the necessities of the government, when honestly and economically administered." This is not only the democratic doctrine, it is the democratic pledge clearly and distinctly made. The people endorsed it, and it must be redeemed. Protection does not enter into the scheme, and it will be found that there is small place in a revenue tariff for incidental protection. As Mr. Watterson truly says, "every duty must be laid for revenue only, and where revenue begins, protection ends." It is for this reason that the Kentucky platform-maker denounces the tariff measure framed by the reform club as a halting and time-serving meas ure. That measure contemplates filling a deficit with short time bonds. This is not tariff legislation at all, and is not contemplated by the democratic pledge.

The way to reform the tariff is to carry out the democratic platform. Mr. Watterson would abolish the sugar bounty and raise a revenue of $25,000,-000 by taxing sugar; if needed, $25,-000,000 by taxing coffee; and, in a pinch $25,000,000 by taxing tea. With this, he would give a revenue tariff on woolens, on linens, on cutlery, on carpets on clothing, on tools of every kind, and on household utensils of all descriptions. The Constitution is of the opinion that a graded income tax would enable the democrats to deal with the tariff in a still more thorough manner, for then the poor man's breakfast table could be made essentially free.

A Word for State Banks.

The Albany, N. Y., Argus suggest that it is in order to dispassionately discuss the coming change from national to state bank notes, to the end that when the new system comes in it may be as safe and satisfactory as the pres ent system. The Argus has never been known as a strong advocate of state banks, but it cannot close its eyes to the fact that the national banks must necessarily be come extinct, and other banks of iss must supply their place. It admits that "a perpetual national debt is necessary to the perpetuation of the nach a debt is repugnant to the Ameri-n people." The good that has been ished by national banks in the past may be duly recognized, but no ive argument can be drawn from it in favor of maintaining conditions which are objectionable to the great body of our people.

Another point is that the national oanks do not now make the large profits from circulation so common earlier years, and this feature of the situation naturally causes both old and new bankers to desire a return of a system under which they can increase their gains.

The discussion may appear to develop at times a stubborn opposition to state banks, but the imperative necessity of providing a substitute for a system which dies with the disappearance of our national debt will sooner or later bring the two classes of bankers together, and they will agree upon a plan of issuing state bank notes with satisfactory safeguards. There is nothing else practicable, unless the people undergo a revolution of sentiment and consent to the creation of a new national debt. Under the circumstances, it is safe to say that one of the first notable reforms of the next congress will be the repeal of the 10 per cent tax on state bank circulation, and the re-establishment of that circulation

What Our Opponents Expect. The Farmer's Voice, a Chicago weekly with a large circulation among western agriculturists, predicts that the next presidential campaign will find the two old parties and the populists in the field, with the latter party greatly strength ened.

The protectionists, says our contemporary, will die hard. They believe that protection is to their personal interest just as the free traders believe that free trade is to their personal interest, and as a matter of course this feeling makes the parties more energetic and persistent. The Voice says of the third party:

It will grow. Its leaders will become wiser and become better political leaders. Some of the planks in the last populist platform which repelled thousands upon thousands of voters-will be eliminated, as these people to see that an ideal state of things ion may institute some reforms. As it has the executive and both branches of congre e. But it will not fully meet the d mands of the great majority of our farming population, simply because the average poli-tician has been taught a political economy that is radically different from the political economy that the farmer has been studying Hence, even under the most favorable c cumstances, the populist cause will grow strength. The disposition upon the part of the press and politicians of the old parties not to recognize this is manifest, but that disposition, which brought consternation into

The camps of some of them, will again lead them to confusion. All this simply amounts to the declaration that the populists hope to see the democratic party fail to redeem the pledges in its platform. They count on that failure to build up their party and enable it to enter the next campaign with a fighting chance.

It is well to note the undercurrent of talk now going on in the camps of our opponents, but the only effect that it can possibly have will be to make the administration and all genuine democrats all the more determined to speedly carry out the tariff and financial reforms promised in our platform. The pledges of the party will be redeemed, and the third party advocates will find out that they have been speculating in futures, without any basis of tangible assets. No party regaining the supreme control of the government for the first time in a generation would be guilty of the incredible folly of ignoring the promises that carried it into power.

A Graceful Thing to Do.

President Cleveland has shown a disosition to occasionally look beyond the democrats who are seeking office, and make his own selection, and the appointments thus made have generally been very satisfactory to the party and the country. We have nothing to say against ofice-seekers-it is an honorable thing to seek an office, and any man has a right to do it-but we feel tempted to make a suggestion entirely in accord with Mr. Cleveland's line of action. We have here in Georgia a brainy and sturdy democrat whose splendid services to the party deserve some fitting recognition. The Hon. W. Y. Atkin son, speaker of the house, was the chairman of the state democratic executive committee in the campaign of last year. He sacrificed his private interests and gave his whole time to the work of solidifying and strengthening the democracy of Georgia, and with such signal success that the third party organization suffered a disastrous defeat in the state and national elections. Mr. Atkinson showed himself to be a superb organizer. He had the confidence of his people, and he rallied them like a veteran, and the national democracy to ome extent reaped the benefit of his

He was in the last campaign, as in those of former political combats, one of the most scrive and popular advocates on the stump of sound democratic principles. There are few nen in Georgia so sympathetically in touch with the plain, honest sympathetically in touch with the plain, bonest yeomanry of the country districts as is Finnet Womack. He understands them and they have perfect comidense in his earnest and honest affection for them and their dearest interests. Speaking of affains, he said: "The Constitution is on the right line. It is voicing the sentiments of the great mass of Georgia democrats in demanding a strict compliance with the promises of the Chicago platform. It was upon that platform that we won the people to us in the campaign, and we cannot afford to go back on the expectations we taught the people to have. We must have tariff reform of a true and substantial character, equal coinage of gold and silver, the repeal of the 10 per cent tax and a thorough relief from trusts and monopolies. Without these we will go before the people next year naked and defenseless."

"The several inspectors of fertilizers who have been all over the state from this office and that the truth of the situation is that the cotton acreage is but slightly increased this year. In many regions of Georgia they have found that the farmers have really sut down the acreage of cotton below the mark reached last year."

"Why, then has there been so much fertiliters inspected this year?" was asked.

"It is easily explained. You see the price of cotton seed went away up in the skies this year, inducing all of the farmers, or nearly all of them to sell out their seed. The price went up to $25 and $30 per ton. This was a great temptation to the farmers to sell. The result was that many of them sold so nearly out that they have not enough cotton seed left them to put under their corn crops as a fertilizer. Outon seed has heretofore been their chief corn fertilizer, and having sold out their cotton seed it is easy to see that they would have to have more commercial fertilizers than usual for their corn planting. This, in a great measure, accounts for the great increase in the sales of fertilizers.

The Vindicator publishes an account of a new insurance company, which is to have a capital of $10,000,000 at the start paid in, and is to be managed by an Atlanta underwriter. A part of the capital is to be devoted to building cotton warehouses on a new plan and so arranged that in case of fire doors will open automatically and the bales will slide out. It is claimed that cotton risks can be written at 3-4 per cent and made to yield a profit to the company when the cotton is stored and protected in the manner the company will suggest. The company will be known as the Insurance League of North America. The capital is furnished entirely by cotton men. Two million dollars is furnished by New York capitalists; $1,000,000 by Nortolk; and the same amount by the Carolinas, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee and Texas; and $2,000,000 by New Orleans. ACCUSED OF A MIDNIGHT ASSAULT.

Thought to Be the Man Who Attacked Young Dalrymple-Unpleasant Po-sition of a Prisoner.

"Just because a greater quantity of fertilizers has been sold in Georgia this year than last is no reason for the belief that the cotion acreage is so much larger this year than it was last year," remarked Howlett Joiner, fertilizer clerk of the department of agriculture at the state capitol yesterday.

"The discussion along this line given by The Constitution is certainly one of the longe interesting matters the farmers of the Joe Mims, a middle aged negro with a

Joe Mims, a middle aged negro with a very unprepossessing countenance, was yesterday morning locked behind the bars of the county jail, charged with assault with intent to murder.

Mims is believed to be the leader of the band of these midhight prowlers who entered the home of the late A. J. Dalrymple, a few miles north of Atlanta a few nights ago in search of the hidden gold that Mr. Dalrymple was believed to possess, and who attacked and left senseless young James Dalrymple, who discovered the men gliding through the rooms.

Circumstances make out a very strong case against Mims, though it is altogether possible that he is an innocent man. On the morning after the midnight assault upon Mr. Dalrymple, a large searching party was organized and the very woods were scoured in an effort to find the guilty men. Great indignation was felt over the murderous attack, and it was said that if the men had been found the next day they would have fared badly.

Tracks were found by the searching party leading away from the Dalrymple home, and one man was traced by the impression left by his pedal extremities to within 100 yards of Joe Mims's house. Naturally, Mims was at once suspected of having a hand in the affair, and his not very savory reputation in the past gave color to the suspicion. Mims was called out and the tracks leading from the Dalrymple house compared to his big foot. They corresponded exactly, the foot being of the variety known as slew foot, and the tracks having been made by that kind of feet.

When questioned Mims did not give a very good account of himself and was carried before young Dalrymple, who was not quite sure, but was rather of the opinion that Mims was the man who gave him the hard fight for the possession of the gun and who tried to shoot him. A warrant not quite sure, but was rather of the opinion that Mims was the man who gave him the hard fight for the possession of the gun and who tried to shoot him. A warrant was sworn out for Mims on the charge of assault with intent to murder, and he was carried before a justice of the peace and committed to jail to await trial. It is believed that Mims is guilty and that the other two negroes will soon be found, although Mims strenuously denies that he had anything to do with the murderous affair. In the Place of Another.

Unless something is done this morning, Sidney Britt will have to bear the penalty of another man's law breaking, while that other man enjoys the freedom that the law intended for Sidney.

The circumstances are these: W. H. Maxwell was arrested by the revenue authorities for running an illicit distillery in violation of the internal revenue laws. Sidney Britt was employed by Maxwell at the time and he was arrested for working in a distillery, a much lighter grade of offense than that of which Maxwell was charged.

ing in a distillery, a much lighter grade of offense than that of which Maxwell was charged.

A month ago the two men were tried and plead guilty and as it was their first offense the court dealt lightly with them. Maxwell was given three months in the Atlanta jail and Britt was given one. They cheerfully went to jail to serve out their sentences and it was not noticed by them or by any one else that in the official papers sent down from the United States court that the sentence of three months was given to Britt and Maxwell was down with one month.

Today Britt's sentence expires, but as stated above unless something is done, Maxwell will go free and he will have to remain in jail and serve out Maxwell's time. He was very much agitated over the outlook yesterday and sent for an attorney. Maxwell is sick and takes things easily. He will go out this morning unless the error is righted.

Redwine is Sick.

Redwine Is Sick. Lewis Redwine was not at home to visitors yesterday. To callers, the announcement was made that Mr. Redwine was sick and would prefer to be excused. This was quite true. He was attacked Sunday afternoon, and sent for his physician, Dr. Elkin. Dr. Elkin was with him for some instances, exchanged their cotton seed for fertilizers direct, just for planting corn, and in this way it is found that the increased sale of commercial fertilizers maens, nine times out of ten, that the farmers are planting a large grain crop this year. The truth is that the increase of fertilizer sales before Christmas, away back yonder in the fall was four times greater than it was last year at that time, and how could this have any effect upon the cotton acreage whatever, it being in the fall and almost before the last cotton crop was gathered. It was been a great amount of grain sown by the Georgia farmers this year, and it becomes more and more evident as the years go by that the farmers of this part of the south at least are learning the lesson that has been taught them by such long experience to live at home. They are going for a good crop of home products this year and it is tully very gratifying.

"Still another very strong argument that the increase of fertilizer sales means an increase in grain crops, not cotton, is that meat is so high. Meat has gone up to wonderful prices. It necessitates a much larger corn crop than has heretofore been planted. The deduction is clear. It means that the farmers see what is ahead of them and they have been planting much larger corn crops than they did last year and the year before.

"It is altogether wrong to believe that the cotton acreage has been so vastly increased just because the sales of fertilizers have been so much greater than they were last year. It is the opinion of the inspectors of fertilizers from this office whose duty it has been to go all over the state to look into this matter, that the cotton acreage in the state of Georgia will be but little, if indeed any greater this year than it was last season. I am confident that this will be shown up by the regular report of the commissioner of asriculture when it is compiled with absolute accuracy from the reporters of the department all through Georgia."

Treasurer T. A. Hammond, of the Grady Monument Association, is now closing up his final report on the Grady monument for an office under the administration. He was at the statehouse yesterday after signatures and was making himself very happy around the officers who look after the destiny of old Georgia. They did not know at the first glance that he was after anything and believed that he was simply paying them a friendly visit. He sang for the men in every department of state and it was noticed that he threw more genuine soul stirring pathos into the strains of the "Lone Rock by the Sea" than he commonly does. When he finished his song he asked to be endorsed for clerk of the surveyor of customs at Atlanta, and it fairly took the breath from the officials—so surprising.

"Oh, well," said the judge, "I voted for Mr. Cleveland and make no bones about saying so. I have been a republican for a long time, but I voted for Mr. Cleveland this time on conscience and principle."

Judge Newsome was at one time ordinary of his native county of Greene, and made one of the best and most trusted officers of the county that ever served. A proof of how he is esteemed there is in the fact that his picture now adorns the walls of the county courthouse.

When the judge had received several enhis final report on the Grady monument fund.

The monument was unveiled a year and a half ago, and almost all of the subscriptions to the fund have been paid. There are still a few outstanding, however, amounting in all to about $500, for which the committee is liable and which it is therefore very anxious to collect, in order to square its accounts and dissolve.

Treasurer Hammond has in his books a full account and a complete record of every payment made and every dollar still owing the fund. This report will soon be published, giving the names of all subscribers, and the payments received, and will embody in every sense of the word the complete proceedings of the wonderful movement, which is probably without a parallel in this country, resulting in the raising of a fund for the building of a monument within thirty days of the death of the man in whose memory it was raised.

THE INDIAN WAR VETERANS

And Their Widows Do Not Need Attorneys in Washington to Get Their Pensions. Washington. April 7.—Editor Constitu-tion: In you issue of the 6th instant J. H. Brightwell, M.D., of Maxey's, Ga., asks you to "tell the poor old Indian soldiers and their widows how to get their pensions, without paying a Washington lawyer more than 25 per cent of what the government allows I am glad that I can give the information that Dr. Brightwell calls for. There is no necessity for these pension claimants to pay one cent to any Washington lawyer. Under the act granting pensions to the survivors of the Indian wars and their widows, which became a law July 27, 1892, the services of attorney at the seat of government are not needed. Those claimants who have employed lawyers in Washington will, of con lawyers in Washington will, of course, have to pay those lawyers whatever fee has been agreed upon they will have to carry out their contracts, but they need not have made any such contracts.

When an attorney have been employed and no fee has been agreed upon, the law does not allow such attorney more than $10. If a fee has been agreed on between the claimant and the attorney, the law secures such fee to the attorney.

allow such attorney more than $10. It a fee has been agreed on between the claimant and the attorney, the law secures such fee to the attorney.

But, I repeat, there is no need to employ an attorney in Washington in these cases. The method of procedure is very simple. The person who wants to apply for a pension should write to the commissioner of pensions, stating what kind of pension is to be applied for, and asking for a blank application. This blank will be promptly sent to the person applying. In filling it out the services of a home lawyer or some court officer may be needed, in order to insure legal accuracy; but I suppose most lawyers and court officers "at home" would do this service free of charge. Even if a Washington lawyer is employed, this work of filling out a blank application must be done at home; it cannot be done in Washington.

After the application is filled out, the next thing to be done is to get it into the pension office in Washington; and a 2-cent postage stamp will do this as well as the ablest lawyer in the United States. When the application is received at the pension office it is filed, and, in its turn, it comes up for examination. If, on examination, of the applicant on any necessary evidence is found lacking, or if there is any other defect in it, the pension bureau will promptly notify the applicant can furnish the additional evidence, or whatever is needed by mail just as well as through a Washington lawyer. In fact, about the only thing that the Washington lawyer can do is to receive letters from the applicant and send them to the pension office; and receive letters from the pension bureau, that requires them of the pension bureau; and if they are entitled to pensions Committed to the Macon Jail.

H. C. Coachman, the negro porter for the East Tennessee railroad, who was charged with opening the registered mail belonging to that road last Saturday, was tried before Judge Gaston yesterday morning and bound over in default of $1,000.

In charge of Deputy Marshal Landers, he was sent to Macon for safe keeping in the jail at that place until the time of his regular trial. As the offense with which the negro is charged was committed in that district, the trial will occur at Macon and hence the incarceration.

Postal Clerk A. C. Warren was the principa, witness for the prosecution, and his testimony was such as to exclude the possibility of a doubt.

Rupert Ayers was arrested yesterday for a violation of the f.deral laws and bound over in default of a bond for $500. He had just been liberated from custody when he was reariested by Deputy Johnson for a separate violation of the law.

Admitted to the Federal Court.

IT WILL MEET THURSDAY. The Grand Jury of Fulton County Will Convene Day After Tomorrow !

The grand jury of Fulton county will convene next Thursday morning. It will be an important session, as the criminal branch of the superior court will convene on the following Monday. True bills against parties now in jail will have to be made out prior to the assembly of court, and as the jail is full of "birds," it will take some little time to complete the

it will take some little time to complete the several investigations.

The grand jury, however, is largely composed of hustlers, and when they buckle down to business they brook no interruptions. The term of the court immediately following the meeting of the grand jury, will, in all probability, be one of notable interest.

following the meeting of the grand jury, will, in all probability, be one of notable interest.

Porter Stocks will then be tried for the second time for the killing of Alph Cassin. This investigation has been pending for quite a while and the probability is that there will not be another continuance. It was continued last time on account of the serious illness of Mrs. Stocks, the mother of the defendant. Both sides are anxious to try the case, and it will no doubt be set for week after next.

The trial of Julia Force for the killing of her two sisters will also come up for disposition. The finding of a true bill against her by the grand jury makes it a matter of compulsion for the court to try her on the issue of her guilt. A plea of insanity will no doubt be filed and that will be tried before the jury that will sit to try her for murder. Again insanity may be argued as a defense for the commission of the act, and that will come up during the trial of her guilt and will be urged by her attorneys as a sufficient ground for her acquittal.

Several other important cases will be tried at the approaching term of the court

THE NEW YORK MARKET.

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, April 10.—The stock market, after a tolerably firm opening, became weak on the news from Chicago concerning the Strike of laborers at the world's fair grounds and the positive announcement of the engagement of $3,500,000 of gold for shipment by the Steamship Havel, sailing for Europe tomorrow. During the day, reports were industriously circulated that the shipment of gold by steamers sailing late in the week would be as large, if not heavier than those to be made tommorrow. On the strength of all this, the bears hammered the list and whenever the market showed a disposition to recover, put out additional lines of shorts. In only a few instances, however, were the losses really important. Sugar fell off 11.8 to 104; Chicago Gas, 11-2 to 90 1-4; Northwest, 1 to 1131-2; Lackawanna, 11-4 to 1441-4; Delaware and Hudson, 2 to 129-3-4; General Electric, 11-4 to 1063-8; New England, 1 to 33; National Cordage, 2 to 661-2; lead, 11-8 to 391-8; Reading, 11-8 to 231-8 and Tennessee Coal and Iron, 11-4 to 251-4. Most of the Grangers and trunk lines, as well as Missourl Pacific, Union Pacific, Louisville and Nashville and Western Union declined only fractionally. In the meantime Manhattan rose 3 to 165, reacted to 163, railled to 164, and during this the Pullman Palance Car Company, on the prospects of heworld's fair, bounded up from 1981-4 to 2043-4. Richmond Terminal soid up from 91-8 to 101-8, but later jost most of the improvement when it became known that there were no new developments concerning the proposed plan of reorganization. Distiling and Cartile Feeding advanced from 301-2 to 321-2 and later sold off to 311-8 on rumors that the annual report to be made public on Wednesday would be unfavorable. The outstanding short interest in the stock is very large. At the close prices were 1-8 to 1 per cent above the lowest, the latter in National Cordage, which rallied to 671-2.

The market left off barely steady in tone. The transactions aggregated 228.610 sh The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

Hubbard. Price & Co.'s Circular.

NEW YORK, April 10—The Liverpool cotion market today has had a very exciting time, caused by reports rain in Texas, accompanied by heavy selling orders from America and the liquidation of the long cotten which was carried ever on account of the failure of Mr. Wimpheimer last week. This selling caused a decline in Liverpool during the day of 7-54d, the equivalent of some 30 points in our American market. The demand from spinners caused by the trade here and our market at the opening was from $\text{3}\text{8}\text{4}\text{point} points better than the closing quotations of Saturday but the disparity between the two markets is so great that selling orders were immediately sent to Liverpool against purchases here, and the weakness in that market brought about a decline in our until May sold as low as $.65 and chases here, and the weakness in that market brought about a decline in our until May sold as low as 8.65 and August at 8.34. This decline was accompanied by reports of rain in Texas, which we have endeavored to trace. We have learned that there appears to have been a shower in Weatherford. No other rains are reported, and the probabilities indicate fair, warmer for Texas. The Texas weather report, received today, says that the rainfall in that state has been below the normal. A telegram from a valued friend of ours in New Orleans says that Brenham, Texas, wired him that there is every indication of drought. The Texas normal. A telegram from, a valued friend of ours in New Orleans says that Bronham, Texas, wired him that there is every indication of drought. The Texas weather report further states that planters hold seed sufficient but for one planting, and are behind in their work, not wishing to risk the loss of their seed at the present high prices ruling for that commodity. Throughout the Mississippi valley the weather seems to be favorable for planting the crop, and many telegrams have been received stating that there will be an increase of acreage throughout that ection, which was last year overfowed. The market has now declined 25 points, or ice from the price touched on Saturday, and there appears to be no change in the situation that should have caused such a drop in prices. Nevertheless the feeling is very bearish, and the heavy selling orders come from the cotton district. Receipts tomorrow will probably reach 8,000 bales. A slight rally occurred during the afternoon, but the temper of the market continues very bearish, and under the pressure of free selling orders from the south the market closes weak at the lowest quotations of the day. The short interests are very confident of a further decline in consequence of the increased movement and the weaker feeling in Liverpool, and expect that prices tomorrow will show a further falling away.

THE CHICAGO MARKET

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, April 18—The majority of the board of trade shorts had reason for rejoicing at the close of to-day's market. The exception was in the case of those short of May wheat. That particular delivery closed %c higher than it did on Saturday. The clique were not sellers of May wheat. They were merely teasing the shorts and it has now become with the latter. the shorts, and it has now become with the latter s question of ability to put up margins. That ability will apparently be severely tested in the next two weeks. A bulge of 2½ was witnessed during the day in May wheat. Pardridge seemed to be the leading buyer, and had half a dozen brokers in the market taking all they could get, while some small fry was also freely buying with little for sale. The clique has so far been doing nothing. It has not aided the advance, except that it has not sold to any extent. It is generally admitted, however, that it holds the winning card, and has only to refuse to sell to put prices much higher. The point was out Saturday that May would be \(\text{q} \) up today, and it has been very near that figure all day, having sold from \(\text{14} \) is to 84c. It has great possibilities apparently, and many would be surprised if tabould not go to \(\text{2} \) before the close of the week. In July there was less business and very little excitement July there was less business and very little exciteme July there was less business and very little excitement with prices ruling weaker than on Saturday. This was due to the fact that general rains were reported throughout Kansas, Missouri, Nebrasks and southern Illinois. As the bull feeling had been built up on dry weather in these districts, the report of rains relieved the situation; but advices on this score were contradic tory—the weather map did not show them, and many doubted their existence. Cables were higher the tory—the weather map did not show them, and many doubted their existence. Cables were higher, the Michigan erop report was a bad one and the visible supply decreased 380,000 bushels, but the amount on ocean passage showed an increase of 1,160,000 bushels. The expected issue of the government crop report was a restraining influence. The scalpers and smaller traders were generally desirous of straightening up their trades in view of more than unusual uncertainty resulting from the fact that this was the first government report since Mr. Dodge's decapitation.

A good deal of the evening up was indulged in by corn traders, longs selling and shorts covering. A coin traders, longs selling and shorts covering. A May to the extent of 200,000 bushels, and a large receiving and elevator concern was supposed to have under the closing quotations of Saturday, but it was not long under quite a brisk demand, before an advance of 2½c took place. The market afterwards ruled easy with wheat, closing with a slight loss.

There was a liberal-trade in oats and a weaker feeling, prices declining 160%c and closing easy at about the inside figures.

The scalpers had a merry time in provisions early, but came near their own destruction. They started on CHICAGO, April 10.—The markets opened for the week quite active; fairly liberal trade all around. Cables reported foreign markets materially higher, which is partially offset, however, by an increase on passage of over one millions of bushels. Probably the most of this wheat is from the region of the Platte or South American ports. Local rains in Kansas and Masouri made the feeling on July wheat a little weak before the opening, but during the greater part of the session offerings were quie light and the market remained quite firm, antil near the close, when increased offerings and few buyers and the market closed rain. lower than the close of Saturday. The trading was restricted, owing to the forthcoming government report today, speculators prefering to await the result of Morten's guess on the condition of the growing winter wheat. The consumptive domestic demand from country storekeepers was quite liberal for hams, shoulders and other meats, there being quite a general inquiry, besides a pretty good trade, but the speculative futures were not so strong. The market was narrow and became quite heavy shortly after the opening, lard declining fully 20 cents per 100 and pork 40 cents per barrel. There was a good demand for sample and car lots of corn at fully 14 cent higher. Speculative interest was light. Oats were in poor demand, supply large and receivers had to accept lower prices for consignments.

He Was Identified with the City for Nearly Forty Years—The Funeral Services Tomorrow. Mr. E. E. Rawson, one of Atlanta's pioneer citizens, and a man who lived without reproach in this community, is dead. He died peacefully at the residence of his son-in-law, Judge T. P. Westmore-land, yesterday morning at 8:50 o'clock. The members of the family were all present, having been summoned to his bedside the afternoon before in apprehension of a fatal termination of his illess. The readers of The Costitution were apprised of the change in Mr. Rawson's condition last Sunday morning, at which time it was intimated that his physicians entertained no hope of his recovery and his death was simply a question of a few hours. It became evident to the members of the family Sunday evening that Mr. Rawson's death could not be delayed beyond the night. They were therefore constantly in attendance around his bedside until the end came yesterday morning and the soul of the good man went out into the bright forever. The figure of Mr. Rawson, tall and erect, was familiar to nearly every one in Atlan-He was frequently on the street, though of late years his movements about the city were made in his buggy and he never failed to attract attention by his graceful carriage and dignified demeanor. He enjoyed good health until the latter years of his life and was a man of great activity and capacity for work. A full account of the life of Mr. Rawson has already appeared in this paper, and without repeating facts, it is proper to say by way of generalization that Atlanta has seldom witnessed a more remarkable and active career than that of this enterprising and public spirited citizen. For more than forty years he was a potential factor in the growth of this city, coming to Atlanta before the war, and identifying himself with all of the movements which have fruited in her permanent prosperity. As a business man, Mr. Rawson was the ossessor of great talent. He was a born conomist and in all of his transactions he displayed remarkable judgment, associated with absolute integrity and a careful observation of the rights of other men. As a Christian, his life was exemplary and his conduct was always regulated in such a manner as to be in strict accord and harmony with his belief. He was one of the original members of Trinity Methodist church of this city and remained an active and devout member of that denomination until the day and hour of his death. His loyalty to his church asserted itself even in his last moments.

Review of His Illness. Mr. Rawson has been in declining health for several weeks prior to his death. Nothing serious, however, was thought of his indisposition until a few days ago, when a change occurred which excited the alarm of his family and caused them to realize that his life was in imminent danger. He continued to grow worse until the end came yesterday morning, surrounded by the members of his family and household.

Feveral days ago when the revival services at Trinity church began, Mr. Rawson, who was too ill to leave his room, sent word to the pastor, Dr. Lewis, that he was profoundly interested in the services and would be with him in spirit every night. As a proof of his religious zeal in spite of his illness, he agreed to sit up every night to hear the news of the good work that was going on at the church. In this way he could fancy himself at the service and avail himself of some of the benefits to be derived from listening to the word of God.

The was characteristic of the man. He rarely missed the services of the church, and took a special delight in all of the appointments of the sanctuary. He contrib-uted liberally of his ample means to the support of the church and the furtherance of all its benevolent and missionary movements. He was a devout and goodly man, and the influence of his strong positive example will be felt in this community after many moons have waxed and waned. Members of the Family. Mr. Rawson leaves a large family, consisting of a wife and nine children, in addition to quite a number of grandchildren. His children who survive him are Mrs. John Ray, Mrs. Judge W. R. Hammond, Mrs. Henry S. Johnson, Mrs. Judge T. P. Westnioreland and Messrs. Edward E., Charles A., William C., Sidney J., and Lewis L. Rawson. His wife, Mrs. Elizabeth W. Rawson was a sister of Judge beth W. Rawson was a sister of Judge The family of such a man, as might naturally be supposed, was influenced to a marked degree by his formulas of home government as well as by the rigid piety which he exhibited. As a consequence, the mem-bers of his household have all of them em-braced Christianity, and most of them are earnest and active workers in the church. Arrangements for the Funeral. The funeral arrangements have not as yet been fully completed. The services, how-ever, will occur from Trinity church tomorrow morning and will be largely attended. Get the Genuine,

OUR PIONEER

A Health Resort That Rivals Any in the

iness This Season-The Keeley In stitute and Other Matters.

Indian Spring, April 10.—This noted health resort is destined to rival any in the south in popularity with health and pleas-re seekers.

This fact is demonstrated by the number of health seekers attracted here during the past winter, and the large influx of visitors nised for the approaching summer.

As an all-the-year-round resort Indian Spring will manifestly be the most noted in the south. And this is not at all strange. As far back as the beginning of the present century the healing properties of the water attracted the wonder and veneration of the aboriginees. The Creek Indians, who then had possession of this and adjacent territory, called the tiny stream, "medicine water." "medicine water."
For all forms of indigestion, liver complaint, nervous exhaustion, eczema, skin diseases of all kinds, rheumatism, dyspepsia, etc., it was an infallible cure for the Red Men.

Through their friendly intercourse with the whites whose numbers steadily multi-plied, civilization soon began to drink deep draughts from the health-giving fountain. This settled it so far as the Indians were concerned. Taste precipitated desire for possession and the red skins were transferred to other hunting grounds beyond the Mississippi, while Georgia stepped in as monarch of all she surveyed. Possession was acquired by means of a treaty entered into between the state and the Indians in 1825, and the transaction marked a lurid incident in American history. It came near precipitating war between the general government and Georgia, and occasioned the assassination of General McIntosh, chief of the confederated tribes, whose pen-stroke gave a quit claim to the reservation. He was hunted down and killed by hostile members of his tribe. Irrepressible Governor Troup, however, maintained Georgia's right of possession throughout the storm of contention and the gushing fountain of "medicine water," is one of the jewels of her sovereign possession until this day. She has parted with all of the reservation except the spring and a plat of ten square acres of which it is the center. This, no amount of individual or syndicate money has been able to buy, and her faith is pledged to keep it for all time. Her humblest peasant can come here and drink without money and without price. It is a government sanitarium, as it were, inclosed and protected by the great seal of state.

Thirty or forty years ago it was the most generally patronized health resort in this section of the south. Always, in fact, the patronage was more than equal to the hotel accommodations. People came here by the hundreds from states as far away as Virginia and Louisiana and it was the principal resort of Georgians. Superior railroad and hotel facilities, however, brought other resorts of lesser note and more enterprise into prominence, thereby temporarily wearing away a large contingent of patronage. But all of this is changed now. Indian Spring has acquired not only railroad facilities but it also is in command of the situation so far as hotel accommodatons are concerned. T a lease of the state's reservation was erfected. He organized the company that built the hotel and superintended its construction. It is a veritable palace, rivaling in beauty and magnificence any summer hotel in the south. It is four stories high and crowns the loftiest ridge of the south. It is four stories high and crowns the loftiest ridge of the state's reservation directly fronting the spring which trickles from a cleft in a huge granife boulder at the base of the hill. The hotel has a frontage of 360 1-2 feet and contains 140 outside rooms, all of which are supplied with electric call bells, fire alarms, gas fixtures and open fire places. Every room commands a sweeping view of lovely scenery, and on every floor are closets and bathrooms with hot and cold freestone water supplied by a complete system of waterworks. Following the graceful curves of the building are wide piazzas affording an unobstructed premenade of one-sixth of a mile in length. The interior furnishing is in keeping with the general magnificence. The ceilings are high and the arcade with its wide halls, large doors and windows catches every breeze that stirs. The dining room is on the first floor and immediately above is the ballroom. Both are finished in oiled plne and are sixty by eighty feet. Handsome carpets and elegant furniture adorn the parlors and bed chambers, and everything that comfort and luxury could suggest is at hand.

Of course George Collier is the presiding genius of the Wigwam. This is but natural and proper, and the success of the hotel under his management attests his poonlarity. He has wonderful executive ability and an instinctive ingenuity for utilizing resources. He is determined that the Wigwam shall have all of the accessories of a first-class resort, and as a means to that end he has begun to cultivate a viscorous jersey farm and a vegetable garden of one hundred acres. This gives George a dead clinch on the market and loads the Wigwam tables with those articless of consumption for which Indian Spring water may

Other News of the Railroads-President Duval Talks of the Florida Central and Peninsular.

Savannah, Ga., April 10.—(Special.)—The betition of J. H. Averill, asking to be appointed receiver of the Port Royal and Au gusta railroad was argued in the United States circuit court here today before Judge Don A. Pardee. The plaintiff was repre-sented by Major Smythe, of Charleston, and Mr. Alex C. King, of Atlanta. The Central was represented by Lawton & Cunning-ham, Major James Ganahl, of Augusta, and

The case was fought on the ground alleged by the metitioner that Mr. Comer's appointment as receiver was illegal and void, as the bill was not ancillary to the original Rewena Clarke bill putting the Central in the hands of a receiver; that the road was not insolvent, and therefore not in need of a eiver, and the Central was merely a stockholder in the Port Royal and subject to the

The defense argued that the receiver for the Central was the only proper person to be appointed receiver of the Port Royal as that road was part of the system, and that, as the court had jurisdiction of the system, the appointment was legal in the case of the Port Royal road; also that the petition represented only 766 out of 22,500 shares, and the read if not insolvent had not been naythe read if not insolvent had not been pay-ing its fixed charges and dividends.

President Duval Talks About the Condition of the Road and the Outlook.

of the Road and the Outlook.

Savannah, Ga., April 10.—(Special.)—
There will be a meeting of the president, vice president and engineers and contractors concerned in the construction of the Florida Central and Peninsular railroad here tomorrow to arrange for terminal facilities. President H. R. Duval, of that road, was seen by a representative of The Constitution today. In regard to the terminal arrangements, he said:

"Though it has not been settled definitely it is highly probable that we will use the terminal facilities of the Central, both water front and depot. It will be money, in the pocket of the Central, and while we have plenty to procure our own terminal facilities in any event, we prefer to make that arrangement, as we are friendly to the Central. Unless Plant, our competitor, has a say in the matter and I do not think he has, this arrangement will undoubtedly be made. However, that will be decided perhaps tomorrow."

In regard to the rumored sale of the road to the Plant system, President Duval said:

"Our road is saleable and if we are offer."

to the Plant system, President Duval said:

"Our road is saleable and if we are offered our figures for it we would sell to Mr. Plant or anybody else. There have been several propositions made by Plant to buy the Florida Central and Peninsular, but none have been acceptable or satisfactory to us and all have been declined. There is no proposition to buy the road ceing considered now. Ours is a small road and in the nature of things, may be swallowed in the course of time by a larger system. It may be the Richmond Terminal, may be the Central or it may be the Plant system. Such is the natural course of small roads and systems, and such is liable to be the future of the Florida Central and Peninsular, though from the outlook now there future of the Florida Central and Peninsular, though from the outlook now there will be some lively competition between our line and Mr. Plant's."

This road is well under way. Half of the 113 miles is now graded and ready for track. Rails will be laid from this point within two weeks. Twenty engines of nineteen and twenty to twenty-four-inch cylinders have been ordered and the rails are all to be seventy-pound steel. Tomorrow's conference will probably decide definitely about the Central furnishing terminal facilities.

MR. WADLEY WILL NOT RESIGN.

Rumors to That Effect Seem to Be Utterly Groundless.

Savannah, Ga., April 10.—(Special.)—
Mr. Comer says there is absolutely no truth in the rumor that Mr. Wadley will resign on account of Judge Speer's decision, awarding the contract to the engineer.—He says he would be the first man to be made aware of it, were such the case, but he has had absolutely no intimation of such a course on the part of Superintendent Wadley. Mr. Wadley was known to be opposed to the contract, and is said to have made a statement that he would resign if not upheld.

MANAGERS SATISFIED.

Officials Are Glad the Boycott Rule Is Barred.

Barred.

The railway officials are very well satisfied with Judge Speer's decision in the engineers' case. They think that they won about as much as the brotherhood did. The thing which particularly pleases the managers is the decision against the boycott rule. That rule influenced many a manager to make concessions which otherwise would have been refused. A strike from any of the organizations is dreaded by the managers. How far these recent decisions will reach cannot be definitely seen now. Managers hope that it will result in causing all differences to be settled by arbitration or in the courts.

Members of the labor organizations are not willing to give up the boycott rule if it can be retained. They say that some of these cases will be carried up to the supreme court of the United States.

A Voluntary Raise.

A Voluntary Raise. Minneapolis, Minn., April 10.—The Twin City Rapid Transit Company, of which Thomas Lowrey is president, controlling the street railways of Minneapilis and St. Paul, has issued an order voluntarily raising the wages of all motormen and conductors in the two cities on June 1st. Those who have been in the employ of the company one year or over are raised from 17 cents per hour to 20 cents per hour. Those who have been in the service less than one year will be raised from 17 to 18 cents per hour. The raise affects about 1,000 men, and involves an added expenditure of $75,000 per annum.

The Statesmen Have Gone Home.

The Statesmen Have Gone Home. The Statesmen Have Gone Home.

Colonel Stahlman is expected back tomorrow. He has been in Nashville attending the session of the Tennessee legislature which has been unusually interesting to railroad men. Many vicious bills were introduced but they were defeated. One of the most hostile was on the line of the Georgia fellow employe liability law but it was more far reaching. It was so sweeping that it was more easily defeated. The legislature adjourned last night, thus putting an end to the hostile legislation until another session comes.

ducted to a comfortable chair. I waited for the grand entry of gorgeous circus parapherna-lia and clownish buffoonery with drum and cymbal accompaniment, but instead a great chorus of voices soon filled the vast canvas with "Old Time Religion" melody, which swept out in the bright springtime sunshine and over the hills like a "Lang Syne" campmeeting benediction. I listened in ecstasy. The spring breezes wafted the melody through the arching trees and up into in ectasy. The spring breezes wafted the melody through the arching trees and up into the bending irmannent, where blending with the minstrelsy of nature, it seemed to fill heaven and earth with ravishing symphony. Presently a patriarchal man with white beard and benign face read of Daniel and King Darius. In an earnest and pleasing voice he began to talk about Daniel—his character and influence over the king and all mankind, and so vividly and dramatically did he portray the virtues of the humble Hebrew prophet that we plainly saw him in the den with the lions and beheld the repentant king walking and agonizing under the lashings of an awakened conscience. The hungry lions seemed to crouch before us with ongels' hands holding them by the mane, while the whole earth trembled under a convulsion with which Daniel's God was then shaqing down the splendid Pantheon of pagna idolatry. The vast audience was riveted while the man of God towered like an archangel and the shekina of God filled the great tent.

Then a rich, clear and ringing tenor voice.

Then a rich, clear and ringing tenor voice, with organ accompaniment broke the spel which had held the great congregation and it joined with boundless enthusiasm in the choral words:

"The old-time religion,
It carried my mother to heaven and is good mough for me."

It carried my mother to heaven and is good enough for me."

Like the rush of pent up waters the music rolled loud and high, while preachers, men and women shouted, shook hands and cried aloud for Daniel's God to be their God. Young men and women rushed tothe front and clung to the preacher's hands in a delirium of religious ferror and the whole tent was a biazing, burning and Bentecostal manifestation of the Holy Ghost among men. "The old-time religion." "It took my mother to heaven:" These words continued to roll with emphasis and harmonious rythm from a thousand throats and burned themselves into our innermost heart and the harmony still rings in our ears.

Mystery of mysteries! Instead of a circus tent we found ourselves in a temple where the Great Jehovah with Daniel and Darius seemed to walk and talk in the fiesh, while the angels and sanctified spirits hovered around and camped about the sacred spot.

Eternal Godhead! Is there still beauty and mystic pathos in the old time religion? Is there still a divine electric current pulsating between heaven and earth? Is there still a Gilead balm for bruised, hungry and weary souls? Does the blood of Calvary still possess healing, cleansing and purifying virtues? Does God Almighty's rainbow of truth and promise still arch our heavens? Does the faith of Daniel and the Christianity of Bethlehem still blaze and burn amid the skepticisms, conflicting creeds and sweeping infidelities of our modern civilization? Tell us, O ye stars, that swing in the eternal firmament, if the God of Sinal still reigns.

Listen and stand amazed ye scoffers and infidels as the answer comes ringing down the ages. Go to these gospel tents—go to these infidels as the answer comes ringing down the ages. Go to these gospel tents—go to these humble churches, where the faithful ambassador of God and His people hold daily communion with the Master, and you will get your answer.

Editor Constitution—Since when has the office of the president of the United States belonged to any man, or any set of men, to the extent that federal patronage ought to be used for the sole purpose of rewarding the men who secured the election of a certain candidate belonged who happened to prefer some other man in the outset candidate belonged who happened who happened to prefer some other man in the outset candidate belonged who happened to prefer some other man in the outset candidate belonged who happened to prefer some other man in the outset as the standard bearer of that party?

Thousands of good democrats in this country thought David B. Hill would suit the country better as president than Grover Cleveland, and those men favored Hill. Later, in Chicago, it was discovered that the majority that the Hill men were not good democrate? So it would seem from the following paragraph in The Atlanta Journal, which says: "Myrick may be appointed. If he is, it will not be because, in the opinion of your correspondent, he is in any way deserving of Mr. Cleveland's favors, etc."

This, from The Journal's Washington correspondent, and the reason assigned is, that Myrick fought Mr. Cleveland's nomination. When it comes to the pass that democrats like Bascom Myrick and thousands of others as good and true men as ever belonged to any party, and who worked as hard for the success of the party, and for Mr. Cleveland's rebondent of the reason that he did not support the man who happened to be nominated, then it is a poor showing for the party, and a much worse one for the crowd in office. For decency's sake, let The Journal spike that Washington gun.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS AND FORECAST.

April weather in Atlanta this year has actually been fully as warm so far as the average May temperature. Thus the more than usual cold weather of last winter is being counterbalanced by the more than usual warm weather of this month. It's a matter of fact that after a period of either unusually warm or unusually cold weather the temperature fluctuates and then there is an opposite extreme. Sometimes there are many months of unusually low temperatures, and vice versa, but eventually there is this change, so that in cities with a hundred years record of temperatures, the climate is found to continue practically unchanged from that of a century ago.

In the United States yesterday the weather was mostly fair between the Rockies and the Mississippi, and also in those states east of the Mississippi, lying to the south of Tennessee. In Tennessee and many of the states further toward the northeast; scattered, light rains were reported. Rather cool weather prevailed in the northeastern states. Last night at 7 o'clock the temperature was 38 degrees in New York city. Seasonable temperatures were reported in the northwestern country, while high temperatures will continue in all the guif states. For Georgia today: Local showers by afternoon or night; no decided change in temperature.

Preparing for the Gracers' Picnic. Preparing for the Grocers' Pionic.

The grocers held a very important meeting last night and received reports from the committee on picule, favoring Tailulah Falls. While in session, however, a committee from the Georgia, Carolina and Northern made such a flattering proposition that the association appointed a committee to visit the grounds offered by the Georgia, Carolina and Northern, near Lawrenceville, consisting of Daniel Klein. A. W. Farlinger, G. H. Sims. J. T. Pope, O. B. Johnson and J. A. Lyon. This committee will report to the association next Wednesday, the 12th instant, at 8 o'clock p. m., at a meeting to be held at the office of the Kaugra Valley Tea Company, No. 19 South Forsyth.

Miss Minnie Jones, in her role as Delsartean, drew a much larger and more enthusiastic audience to the Young Men's Christian Association hall last eveing than she did last week. The encores and "special requests" from the audience brought the artist out in two more selections of which "Mamma's Baby Boy" was the favorite. The enthusiasm of the audience reached its highest wave over this recitation, but when the second part of the entertainment began with the Delsarte aesthetic gymnastics, the fair Delsartean, in a Greek costume, as beautiful as it was modest and artistic, the applause became wild and continuous except where the marvelous power of the expression of some tragic emotion or passion stilled the beholders into an even more expressive silence.

"Dr. Battle then introduced Mrs. J. M. Her talk—I will not call it a lecture—was of deep interest. She told much of the pathetic and inspiring life of Lanier, of his sincere piety, his patience, his gentleness, his heroism. A Lady Receives a Bite for Which She Brings

A Suit.

Yesterday morning in the clerk's office a suit was filed the announcement of which is sure to provoke a smile, although the damage complained of is none the less tangible and real.

Mrs. M Reed, the plaintiff, was passing along in front of the Southern Express office a few weeks ago, when one of the large horses attached to the delivery wagon reached out his mouth and proceeded to take a bite of her arm. Luckily, however, as fate would have it, she wore at the time a very heavy cloak, and this, so the plaintiff alleges, was the only thing which prevented a fatal injury to her arm.

She charges that the company was negligent in allowing the horse to stand in such close proximity to the sidewalk as to interfere with the peaceable enjoyment of the highway. She claims that she has been

of London:
"The unnatural motions of the sto-mach, causing pressure and belchings, the irritation of the intestines, resulting in catarrh of the bowels, and the in-flamed mucous membranes, are the most fruitful of all known causes of disease.

REPORTED FOR THE CONSTITUTION By Peeples and Stevens, Reporters for the Supreme Court of Georgia. Lucas v. the state. Criminal law. Liquor tippling house. Charge of court. Before Judge Bartlett. Bibb superior court.

1. The indictment being for keeping open a tippling house on the Sabbath day, and there being evidence on which to base the charges complained of, there was no error in charging that if the accused owned and controlled a retail liquor shop and upon any Sabbath day within two years of the finding of the indictment that house was kept open, he would be guilty; nor in charging that if the accused was at the door of such house and told another to go in and get whisky and the latter did so and was served with whisky by the wife or the clerk of the accused, the offense would be complete.

2. The following charge: "If the evidence satisfies you that this man was in charge of the bar and the opening door whether any liquor was sold or not, either on that day or any other time within two years prior to the finding of the indictment, you ought to convict him," in the light of the evidence doubtless meant that being in charge of the open door of a barroom on any Sabbath day within the two years mentined would be sufficient to autherize a verdict of guilty, whether liquor was actually sold on any Sabbath a 'tay within that period or not. So congened there would be no error; but even if the charge was misleading, it will not require a new trial in this case, the verdict being imperatively demanded by the evidence.

Judgement affirmed. Judgement affirmed. John R. Cooper, for plaintiff in error. W. H. Felton, Jr., solicitor general, by brief contra. Pritchett v. the state. Criminal law, Burglary. Evidence. Corroboration of accomplice. Charge of court. Before Judge Bartlett. Bibb superior court.

1. The fact that the door of a house was usually kept locked at night is some evidence that it was locked on a particular night there being nothing tending to show that the usage was not observed on the pacht in question. Under such circumstandence that it was locked on a particular night there being nothing tending to show that the usage was not observed on the night in question. Under such circumstances, the usage, together with proof that goods stored in the house disappeared therefrom and were shortly afterward found, some of them in the possession of the xecused, and some in possession of a witness for the state against him, will be sufficient corroboration of the testimony of the witness, he testifying that the building was burglarized by himself and the accused in the night by unlocking the door, cutering the house and stealing the goods.

2. Where the pressure of the case upon the credibility of an accomplice as compared with the credibility of two daughters of the accused, the accomplice testifying that the accused was a party to the burglary, and the daughters testifying that the stolen goods found in possession of the accused were purchased by him from the accomplice in their presence, a charge of the court to the jury that a burglary has been committed, when the evidence shows to the jury that a burglary has been committed, when the goods stolen therefrom, and shortly thereafter the defendant upon trial is found in possession of the stolen goods, that fact, the fact of possession, authorizes the jury to convict, provided that the defendant does not satifactorily explain his possession to the jury." though not verbally, and perhaps, not substantially correct, since it is true in some cases only, yet the jury having, in effect, found by their verdict that the explanation set up by the accused was false, and the testimony of the accomplice being indifficiently corroborated, there was no cause for a new trial.

3. Though burglary cannot be committed without force in the legal sense, it is not error to charge the jury that force or violence in a popular sense would not be necessary. Such, in effect, though not in terms, was the charge of the court in the present case. The charge constrasted the breaking of a house by anlocking the door with a does not satifactorily explain his possession to the jury." though not verbally, and perhaps, not substantially correct, since it is true in some cases only, yet the jury having, in effect, found by their verdict that the explanation set up by the accused was false, and the testimony of the accombile being indiciently corroborated, there was no cause for a new trial.

The indictment having been found at the November term, 1391, and the state having proved by one of its own witnesses that the offense was not committed at all, and by another that, if committed, it was at some indefinite time in 1892, the verdict was not warranted by the evidence.

Before Judge Willis. City court of Columbus.

1. Where the indictment covered not only the keeping of a gaming house, but knowingly permitting persons to come together and play for money at prohibited games in a house or room occupied by the accused, and where the evidence disclosed a single instance of gaming, but no more than one, a conviction could be had whether this constituted the house a gaming house or not. Consequently, that question is immaterial, and it was not error for the court to decline a request to decide it in charging the jury.

2. Under the penal code of Georgia (code 4300), a wife is not excused by the mere presence of the husband for any criminal act done by her. In order for her to stand excused, it must appear that "violent threats, command and coercion were used" by him.

3. When husband and wife reside to-threats, command and coercion were used" by him.

3. When husband and wifs reside together he is the head of the house, whether it be owned by or be rented to the one or the other. When both are present, it is his duty, not hers, to prevent unlawful gaming therein, and in order to hold her liable, criminally, for permitting such gaming, it must appear affirmatively that she was active in the granting of permission, not merely that she was passive in the matter and took no measures to hinder or prevent the game.

4. While the evidence in the record seems insufficient to establish satisfactorily that the accused was a married woman, yet as the court below appears to have so treated her in charging the juty, and the counsel for the state in the argument here having acquired in that year, the court is not called mon to decide upon the effect of the evidence on that question.

Tol. Y. Crawford, solicitor, by W. A. Tigner, contra.

Schnell, alias Jenkins, v. the state: Criminal law. Jurors. Practice. Before Judge Willis. City court of Columbus. It is no cause of challenge to the array that twelve out of the eighteen jurors constituting the array had just zerved as a jury for the trial of another person indicted for a like offense growing out of the same transaction involved in the pending indictment against the accused; that a verdict of guilty was rendered in that case, and that the witnesses and the evidence in the present case would be the same as they were in the former. If the matter of the challenge was good at all, it would not set aside the panel, but would be available only by challenges to the polls.

2. In trials for misdemeanor there is no right to examine a juror upon his voir dire without first challenging him and assigning a cause of challenge. This must be done before the juror is sworn, unless the cause of challenge was assigned, or at what stage of the proceedings the request was made to examine jurors upon their voir dire, the refusal of the court to put each and every one of the jurors on his voir dire at the request of counsel for the accused cannot be held erroneous, the onus of showing error being upon the party who alleges it.

1. The fact that a witness has been convicted of a crime involving moral turpitude is admissible for the purpose of discrediting his evidence. Georgia railroad v. Homer, 73 Ga. 251. When such conviction has been proved, it is not error for the court to charge the jury upon the law as to the impeachment of witnesses. Evidence which discredits a witness on the ground of infamy tends to impeach him.

The evidence implicating the accused being rather weak and wholly circumstantial, his good haracter might well have been treated by the jury as an answer to it; but the jury, in the light of all the evidence, having found him guilty and the trial judge having approved the finding, this court will leave the verdict to stand, there being no sufficient legal reason for overruling the judgment denying a new trial.

The streets of the city of Brunswick being by its charter vested in fee simple in the mayor and council with power to widen, extend and straighten the same, and with power to open, lay out and establish new streets, the necessary incidental power of grading and otherwise improving the streets and keeping them in repair is also in the mayor and council. None of these powers are withdrawn, abridged or limited by the amended charter of the city approved November 12, 1889, providing for the creation of a board of health and the election of a health officer. Ordinance passed under the authority of the amended charter, which do not expressly name the mayor and council as subject thereto are not operative upon them when acting as a municipal body in the exercise of their corporate functions in improving or repairing the streets. Brooks v. state, 54 Georgia 36; Lingo v. Harris, 73 Georgia 28. Elegant Juniper St. Lots.

Here is a rare opportunity to buy a choice residence lot for a gentleman's home. The county commissioners, in their great desire to serve the county where the demand is greatest, have ordered Juniper street opened up at once to Blakely avenue. Nearly every available lot has been picked up on Peachtree and Piedmont avenue, hence the rush for Juniper, which is just between the two. This beautiful street having so recently been put in attractive shape, you are bound to receive an immense benefit by buying now before Peachtree prices are reached. Two years from now you would scarcely be able to buy one of these valuable lots for twice what you pay now.

these valuable lots for twice what you be now. The best lots are enhancing every day. Atlanta is just in her infancy. Great projects are on foot for this year by capitalists that know what they are doing that will swell the population by the thousands. Scores of men are growing rich annually by investing in Atlanta dirt. Did you ever hear of any one losing a dollar in a judicious investment in Atlanta real estate?

This sale Will Be Absolute. This sale Will Be Absolute.

Every lot offered will be sold to the highest bidder. Go out and inspect the property and select your lot before the sale. This kind of choice real estate is exceedingly scarce. Now is your chance to secure a magnificent site for small money; later you will certainly paymore. A few years back lots that could have been had for $75 per front foot on Peachtree are now in demand at from $150 to $200 per foot, and thus it will continue. The wise man will buy now; you can't make an investment that will pay better or more certainly. We offer exceedingly liberal terms; one-third cash, balance one, two and three years, 7 per cent interest. Call at my office for plats.

THE INVESTIGATION.

A New Deal Is Evidently Being Made

A GRAND JUROR DROPPED YESTERDAY.

Only Two Witnesses Were Be'ore the Grand Jury Yesterday-Mr. Jack Spalding the Main Witness.

The Redwine investigation appears to have been completely turned over and a new start made yesterday morning under the regime of Colonel James.

The United States grand jury met at 10 o'clock yesterday morning but it was an hour before that body called a witness before it, the first hour being given to a consulta-tion between the district attorney and the grand jury.

Captain Jackson was in the United States courtroom from 10 o'clock until 11 o'clock, attempting to have some disposition of the Richmond and Danville cases In some way, however, it seemed that he and Judge Newman failed to arrive at the same point of view. Captain Jackson insisted that the cases should go over for two weeks, and the judge ruled that one week was a sufficient postponement. Finally the greater portion of the cases were referred to Mr. W. D. Ellis, as special master. The other cases have as yet not been disposed of.

Immediately after Captain Jackson left the courtroom, he joined Colonel James, who had introduced his assistant, Colonel Rucker, to the grand jury, and the first witness was called before that body.

A number of witnesses had been subpe naed by the grind jury. Among them were Steve Ryan, John F. Ryan, Joe F. Gatins, W. D. Grant, D. W. Rountree, Mack D. Marsh, N. J. Hammond, George Stone, Edward S. McCandless, R. J. Lowry, J. W. English, Paul Romare, Charles Ryan, C. E. Currier, Frank Wheat and John Wheat.

The first witness called before the gran jury was Mr. Jack Spalding, but he did enter the jury room until one of the grand jurors had been dropped off. The oc casion of his being left off was Judge New man calling the district attorney's atten-tion to the fact that one of the grand jurors, Mr. Martin Amorous was a large deposi-tor in the Gate City bank. He suggested that it would be best to drop Mr. Amorous, which was done.

While in the courtroom Captain Jackson had in his hand the seven presentments that had been gotten up by him and Colonel Darnell, but these presentments will not be presented. It comes from good authority that the reason of these prsentiments not being handed to the grand jury was because of the fact that Mr. Amorous was on the grand jury at the time the investi-getions were made and it was feared that their legality might be attacked Lawyer Jack Spaiding as a Witness.

Before going into the grand jury room Mr. Spalding said that he would not ask to be excused, but intimated that rather than divulge anything that had passed between himself and Redwine he would put himself in contempt of the grand jury and go to fail himself and Redwine he would put himself in contempt of the grand jury and go to jail.

Mr. Spalding and the grand jury evidently made it interesting for each other, for he was in the grand jury room for over two hours. About half an hour before Mr. Spalding had finished his testimony Colonel James came out into the hallway and approached the witnesses who had gathered together and told them that they were excused until 10 o'clock this morning.

Then he returned to aid in pumping Mr. Spalding for any facts that that gentleman might have in his possession, and when the atmosphere had somewhat settled it seems that the grand jury was in pssession of any communication that Redwine had made Mr. Spalding. Before Mr. Spalding had finished his testimony Captain English came up and sent in a note to the grand jury asking that he be permitted to testify at once as he was obliged to leave the city today. The foreman and the district attorney consented and Mr. Spalding retired for a few minutes while Captain English gave in his testimony.

The grand jury announced that Mr. Spalding would not be needed any more and that gentleman left the building.

Mr. Spalding did not care to enter extensively into the testimony he had given before the grand jury, but did say that he told what transpired between Lewis Redwine and himself.

"I did tell what passed between us," said Mr. Spalding, "but it was not my intention to have done so when I entered the jury room. The only persons who could have been been affected by it outside of Redwine did not wish me to remain silent."

Who these persons were, however, Mr. Spalding would not say.

Captain English remained in the grand jury room about thirty minutes, and when he came out the grand jury adjourned until 10 o'clock this morning.

"I told just what I did before," was the only statement that Captain English would make.

Germs of Disease

like consumption germs, for instance, may be taken into the system at any time. But when the system is undermined the germs take root and grow. After a hard Winter the body needs a nourishment (not a mere tonic or medicine,) to help ride out the storms of Spring and withstand disease. Exposure to disease now means the taking of disease, unless the system is properly nourished.
